

No Abandonment of 'Demoted' Saints

ST. CHRISTOPHER
... Is Eliminated

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Motorists still can hang St. Christopher medals from dashboards, artillerymen can pray to St. Barbara and the British still can venerate dragon killer St. George despite the Vatican's demotion of dozens of saints Roman Catholics have honored for centuries.

Among the hierarchy of sainthood demoted Friday were St. Nicholas, St. Valentine, St. Barbara, St. George and perhaps the most popular saint in Christendom, St. Christopher.

The Vatican cannot be sure any of them ever lived. The names will disappear from the church calendar of approved and recognized saints whom Catholics must honor on special days. But all will remain saints and Catholics may name them in prayers.

The reform was approved by Pope Paul VI last Feb. 14 but it was not announced until Friday by the Rev. Pierre Journel, a professor of liturgy in Paris. He drew up the report on the saints.

The idea is to downgrade the role of saints, particularly ones the Vatican is not sure ever existed and emphasize the importance of life, death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Observers said it might help counteract criticism by many Protestants and other non-Catholics that the church ignores the gospel and pays too much attention to sainthood.

St. Christopher is considered by millions the patron of travelers. Medals bearing his picture are a big business in Rome.

"I don't care what the Pope says," said a clerk in Billi's souvenir shop a block from St. Peter's Basilica. "We will always sell a lot of St. Christopher medals."

In Vienna, a spokesman for the Austrian Touring Club said the group would continue to recognize St. Christopher.

An Austrian artilleryman said his men would never abandon St. Barbara.

And St. Nicholas? Millions of children will never downgrade him as the Vatican did.

In London, Cardinal John Carmel Heenan said English faithful could continue to honor St. George.

"Catholics here could never bear to cease worshipping a figure such as St. George who has been a rich part of their heritage and culture," Heenan said.

The figure of St. George slaying the dragon decorates banners, shields, medals and buildings from Buckingham Palace to pubs.

The new calendar reduces the number of saints with a mandatory day for Churchwide veneration to 58, plus the 12 apostles, the archangels Gabriel, Michael and Raphael, and St. Joseph and St. Mary.

The calendar revision was recommended by a two-thirds majority of the nearly 2,500 bishops who attended the 1962-65 Vatican Ecumenical Council.

Marines Kill 129 Troops in Two Days

ON TARGET—USS New Jersey, the Navy's only active battleship, fires her nine 16 inch battery towards a target in Vietnam, in this photo released by the Defense Dept. It was the first time since the ship's recommissioning that all nine guns were fired simultaneously. The New Jersey returned to its home port of Long Beach, Calif. recently. (UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL TELE- PHOTO FROM DEFENSE DEPARTMENT)

DA NANG, South Vietnam border involving U.S. infantrymen and air cavalrymen for two nights without sleep to support by tanks and air strikes left more than 100 headed toward Da Nang and Communists dead, most in one killed at least 129 in two days eight-hour battle near a French of fighting, military spokesmen owned rubber plantation. The fight near Da Nang Four other battles between moved into its second day Saigon and the Cambodian today. More than 1,500 Marines marched toward the Vu Gia River where 400 North Vietnamese troops were trying to burst through Allied lines. "It's like a turkey shoot," said Lt. Col. James Higgins, 37, of Glendale, R.I. "We broke up a gathering of the clan. We have got them outgunned and outnumbered."

Marine casualties were reported as six dead and 12 wounded. The Communists split into 10- and 15-man groups and made frantic thrusts against the tightening cordon but there was no escape, military spokesmen said.

U.S. planes swooped in low over dried-up rice paddies, blistering the Communists with napalm. More than 3,000 rounds of artillery ripped in from three Marine outposts.

Far to the south, U.S. infantrymen confronted Communists at four points northwest of Saigon.

Some 600 U.S. 25th Infantry Division troops using tanks fought 200 North Vietnamese regulars in an eight-hour battle near the Michelin rubber plantation 40 miles northwest of Saigon Friday.

The U.S. troops had killed 36 Reds by sundown when the Americans pulled back and called in planes to blast the Communist positions. U.S. losses were two killed and eight wounded. Other 25th Division troops battled 50 Communists 23 miles north of Saigon and killed 15 Reds with the aid of helicopter gunships and artillery. No U.S. casualties were reported.

Further north, U.S. 1st Air Cavalrymen engaged Communists dug in at fortified positions near Phu Khuong, 55 miles northwest of Saigon. The Communists withstood a U.S. ground assault, helicopter gunship fire and artillery bombing for 45 minutes then withdrew, leaving two dead.

Packard was the second high-level administration official to address the businessmen on Friday. Earlier in the day, Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans told them the government was winning its war on inflation and that the "inflationary psychology" that has encouraged the purchase of equipment now to avoid higher prices later has been curbed. But later, corporation economists, in a report to the council's closed door meeting, predicted a 3.9 per cent rise in the consumer price index this year—only 1/2 of 1 per cent below the 4.4 per cent price spiral in 1968.

Packard came to this West Virginia resort to address the Business Council, an organization of the nation's top corporate executives. In his address, the Pentagon official defended the administration's proposal for deployment of a Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) system, saying it is "the best that can be done with present-day technology."

A one-year delay in development of the system's first stage, he said, would mean a two-year lag in making the system operational. Packard tied future reductions in defense spending to a National Security Council study on the nation's military commitments recently ordered by President Nixon.

At Stanford University in California, members of the militant April 3rd Movement Friday began preparations for a class boycott next week to coincide with a meeting of the school's board of trustees. Meanwhile, one of the trustees disclosed he has received two telephone death threats. The April 3rd Movement has held two sit-ins on the 11,000-acre student campus to protest war-related research. Seventy-two students were suspended after a May 1 seizure of Encina Hall.

Hoffer, sans tie and with his checkered shirt hanging out in front, told the Senators students "have tasted blood." "Imagine, senators, they can make history! They have power! It's intoxicating! They have a taste for academic flesh! They want to kill them! They want to eat them!" Only one of the four leaders expressed displeasure with Hoffer's position on ROTC. Eric Hoffer, the "longshoreman philosopher," appeared Friday before Sen. John L. McClellan's permanent investigations subcommittee, currently investigating campus disruption. Hoffer, sans tie and with his checkered shirt hanging out in front, told the Senators students "have tasted blood."

Both the village and the town had signed contracts with the former owner of the dump, Albert Cashdollar, before the property was sold to the Town of Woodstock late last year. The two were billed by Woodstock at a new rate and balked at paying, saying the contracts with Cashdollar were still valid.

After failure to pay, Woodstock closed the dump to the town and village of Saugerties. The two municipalities sought the court injunction that calls on Woodstock to show cause why they cannot continue to dump at the Casadollar site under the old contracts.

Negotiations were ruled out by Mayor Cox who said, "We expect Cashdollar to live up to the agreement as it stands. Under no circumstances will we negotiate," said Cox.

If the village is able to purchase the Cantine property and use it as a dump, the town of Saugerties would be on its own to iron out the problem with the Town of Woodstock.

Balked to New Rate Both the village and the town had signed contracts with the former owner of the dump, Albert Cashdollar, before the property was sold to the Town of Woodstock late last year. The two were billed by Woodstock at a new rate and balked at paying, saying the contracts with Cashdollar were still valid.

He said the village is still negotiating with Cantine for the property said to be valued at around $30,000. Mayor Cox had hoped the new dumping ground in the village would have been in municipal hands by Friday, but he also had said early this week that talks "could go on for a year" with the present owner.

The show cause order to allow the village, and the town, to continue using the Cashdollar Dump is hoped to keep the facility open for the remainder of the contracts, or through 1971.

Jailed Students Hit the Books, Quiet Weekend on Campuses

By United Press International

Two university presidents resigned, 45 students went to jail to study for final exams and a homespun philosopher entertained a Senate subcommittee as the nation's campuses, by and large, entered a peaceful weekend.

Forty-five Dartmouth College students Friday were granted permission to take their textbooks along for a 30-day stay in the Grafton County, N.H., Jail. The jail sentences, plus $100 fines, were meted out for the students' participation in a retire at the end of the nightlong occupation of the academic year, but said "men Administration and events have made this

A handful of Dartmouth's clearing rubble from CCNY 3,100 students skipped classes Friday as other protesters tried to continue the crusade for immediate abolishment of the Corps program there. The 20 pickets, however, were driven off by a drenching rain.

Buell Gallagher, president of City College of New York, resigned Friday after enduring 19 days of revolt on his 20,000-student campus.

Gallagher had planned to retire at the end of the academic year, but said "men Administration and events have made this earlier separation necessary."

As Gallagher announced his retirement, workmen were clearing rubble from CCNY Student Center, set ablaze Thursday by arsonists.

Ray L. Hoffer, president of Brown University in Providence, R.I., did not link his resignation to campus protest.

He said he had "simply reached the conclusion that I did not enjoy being a university president."

Months Of Controversy

The 3,700-student school, however, has experienced months of controversy in which faculty and student government leaders expressed displeasure with Hoffer's position on ROTC.

Eric Hoffer, the "longshoreman philosopher," appeared Friday before Sen. John L. McClellan's permanent investigations subcommittee, currently investigating campus disruption.

Hoffer, sans tie and with his checkered shirt hanging out in front, told the Senators students "have tasted blood."

"Imagine, senators, they can make history! They have power! It's intoxicating! They have a taste for academic flesh! They want to kill them! They want to eat them!" Only one of the four subcommittee members present, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., challenged Hoffer's call for a stern stand against protest.

At Stanford University in California, members of the militant April 3rd Movement Friday began preparations for a class boycott next week to coincide with a meeting of the school's board of trustees. Meanwhile, one of the trustees disclosed he has received two telephone death threats.

In Cashdollar Dump Injunction

'Talk Things Over,' Parties Are Advised

By SHANE CROSBY

ALBANY A State Supreme Court justice has told parties involved in the Albert Cashdollar Dump injunction to "talk things over" before a new hearing on May 22. The Town of Woodstock, Town of Saugerties and the Village of Saugerties were told by the state's highest court Friday to attempt to iron out their differences outside of the court room.

The attorney for the Town of Saugerties, Louis P. Francello, said he "assumes" a special meeting of the town board will be held after he discusses the injunction's progress with Supervisor A. Michael Schovel today. Village Clerk James Gage said a representative of the village who attended the Albany hearing would have to discuss the matter with village officials before any decision could be made regarding any negotiations.

Mayor Cornelius M. Cox had said Monday that the village would not talk over the dispute with the Town of Woodstock, expecting the town to live up to contracts held by the village allowing use of the dump.

Closed Two Weeks

The Cashdollar Dump in Woodstock was closed to the town and village of Saugerties two weeks ago over the contract dispute, but a court order allows the two municipalities to use the dump until a determination could be made by the state court.

The village clerk also said today that no concrete results had come out of talks with the Martin Cantine Company regarding the village's planned purchase of 18-acres for use as a village dump and as an alternative to the Cashdollar Dump.

Special

He said the village is still negotiating with Cantine for the property said to be valued at around $30,000.

Mayor Cox had hoped the new dumping ground in the village would have been in municipal hands by Friday, but he also had said early this week that talks "could go on for a year" with the present owner.

DISAPPEARS WHEN WET—South African starlet Rina Brown, 22, models the swimsuit that actress Jean Collins declined to wear in beach love scenes for the movie "The Executioner." Miss Collins said "I'm no prude, but this special costume practically disappears when wet." Rina, who has a minor role in the film, donned the suit at London's Hurlingham swim club. (UPI CABLEPHOTO)

Mendelssohn Club Concert on Monday

The Annual Spring Concert of the Mendelssohn Club of Kingston, scheduled at the Auditorium of Kingston High School, 8:00 p.m. Monday, May 12, will feature as guest performers two outstanding local artists: contralto Margaret Roosa and flutist Melissa Sweet, and Hudson Valley soprano Dolores Beck.

In announcing this, Mendelssohn president Edward L. Sprute pointed out that the Mendelssohn group has placed emphasis on a concert program of exceptional male choral quality and scope. "Our guest artists consequently had to be performers of special merit," he added. "With Mrs. Roosa and Mrs. Sweet, joined to the choral program of our Mendelssohn Concert we will present a program of outstanding locally produced musical artistry."

Margaret Danford Roosa, noted Kingston contralto, will sing an obligato solo with the Mendelssohn Chorus. She studied voice with the late European trained H. Wellington Smith at the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts where she was contralto soloist with the University's Choral Society and Chorus. She also studied voice with Leonard Stine of Kingston. Mrs. Roosa had the musical honor of singing the contralto solos of a program of Bach Cantatas under the direction of the celebrated Charles Meunch in an Albert Schweitzer Benefit Concert. Locally, she has been guest soloist at the Ulster County Community College, in the Ontario Summer Choral Concert, and 1967 Annual Concert of the Mendelssohn Club. She is vocal teacher on the music faculty of the Kingston Schools Consolidated.

Melissa Sweet, featured flutist, is a resident of Sauger-ties and teaches flute along with performing and continued study. Currently studying flute with Claude Monteux, conductor of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, Mrs. Sweet formerly studied at the Eastman School of Music under noted flutist Joseph Mariano, and also at Syracuse University.

Dolores Beck, who will sing a group of solos as guest artist, previously joined the Mendelssohn group when she sang the soprano portion of a male choral production done by the group two years ago. A prominent dramatic soloist who has been featured in numerous Hudson Valley Musical programs, Mrs. Beck resides at Poughkeepsie.

Mrs. William E. Rylance, herself one of the area's outstanding musicians, will accompany both guest artists. Mrs. Rylance also is the Mendelssohn Club's accompanist.

The Concert will be presented under the direction of Albert G. Hunter Jr. of Poughkeepsie, and assistant conductor Brian Steeves, a member of the music faculty of the Kingston Schools Consolidated and a singing member of the Mendelssohn group. Tickets for the Mendelssohn Concert are available from Club members or by contacting Edward L. Sprute of Kingston.

Tribute to Mother

The role of mothers in this world changes with circumstances and conditions, such as the Vietnam War. But in her personal life, the chief concern of a mother is the welfare of her children.

Good mothers instill character in their children, giving them the care, training and love they deserve. But the apathetic mother more than pays for her selfishness by seeing the consequences of her neglect.

Being a mother is probably the toughest, yet most glorious task in the world. There is no more important job than shaping children into adults.

The mother's place in the lives of those she loves is a hallowed one. Unless we continue to have the miracle of mothers, with a song and an apron, and anxious care for their children, it will be a sorry world indeed.

Tomorrow is Mother's Day, when we pay sincere tribute to one deserving the honor. Mothers have carried more than their share of the day's toil and worries since the beginning of time. We salute her.

Salvation Army Week

"Please do not fold, spindle or mutilate."

Sometimes we are tempted to pin this sign on our coat, as a sort of defense against today's computerization—a plea for a little consideration for the individual in an age of computer cards. That is why we welcome National Salvation Army Week, May 12-18, honoring an organization that has always recognized the unique worth of every man, woman and child.

Very much abreast of modern methods and equipment, the Salvation Army in Kingston still manages to retain a touch of old-fashioned neighborliness. Its people remember the little things that make life brighter—a smile, a cup of coffee, a friendly word. And they have not forgotten the big things that make life worthwhile—dedication, service to others, love of God and man.

Those who are familiar with the work of the Salvation Army in this area, know of the great benefits they bring to people they serve the year round. Its many-faceted social welfare program aims at helping and integrating the whole man, his spiritual, physical, mental and social being. The local organization is one of the participating agencies in the Ulster County Community Chest.

The Salvation Army has many more essential—yet little known—services. That is why their ministry has meant so much to people in all walks of life.

Residents may join in the observance honoring this fine organization by visiting the Salvation Army Building, 94 North Front Street, on Wednesday, May 14, when open house will be held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Move to Political Maturity

South Vietnam is moving toward the two-party system President Nguyen Van Thieu wants for his country. Ten parties have agreed to call a national convention May 15 and to launch a campaign for public support. They are to be the pro-government party, eventually headed by Thieu.

Just previously, non-Communist parties opposed to the President had met and formed the opposition group, as Thieu had requested. There are a hundred parties and groups in South Vietnam. This formation of two major parties is a sign of political maturity.

The two alignments will draw up basic political platforms, formulate party rules, outline their campaigns, and give names to their new parties. They will contest for political power. They will form the political blocs that Thieu hopes will draw most of the South Vietnamese and come together to fight Communism when the war ends.

It is all part of strengthening the country, politically, economically and militarily in preparation for American withdrawal, leaving South Vietnam, to fend for itself. U. S. advisors have encouraged these moves.

Where Pa Goes, Ma Ditto

Another long-established prerogative and province of the male is being invaded by the ladies—the convention.

More than half the men attending conventions in New York are accompanied by their wives these days, reports that city's Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Companies are discovering that invitations which include the distaff side get a good response. To insure high attendance, organizers woo the wives, thereby snaring the husbands.

Nor are the cities where conventions are held at all averse to the trend. While the conventioners are busy convening, it is not unknown for the little women to go sightseeing and shopping.

Howard Hughes not only is a multimillionaire airplane operator of great renown, he is reaching out to become the nation's gambling casino tycoon. He has just taken over his sixth casino in Las Vegas, Nev., the first man to try to gather legal gaming under one control.

May Invalidate Residence Requirement for Voting

WASHINGTON—There are approximately 120,000,000 men and women of voting age in America, but 48,000,000 of them—or 40 per cent—did not vote in the 1968 presidential election. It is estimated that at least 5,000,000 who did not vote were ineligible because of State laws requiring that they must have lived in the State for various specified periods of time before they can register or vote.

It is beginning to look now as if the residence requirements of the States may be invalidated. There are cases pending involving this very issue, and these will be decided by the Supreme Court in the term which begins next October.

The issue arises because a recent decision by the high court declared unconstitutional any residence requirement before a person is permitted to receive welfare assistance. This has strengthened the belief that such a qualification will also be wiped out when it comes to determining eligibility for voting.

Justice Brennan, who wrote the majority opinion in the welfare case, said the effect of the waiting period is to create two classes of needy resident families, indistinguishable from each other except one has lived within a particular state for a year or more and the other for less than a year. This was held to constitute a discrimination which denies the latter "equal protection of the laws."

It was in dissenting opinion, written by Chief Justice

Warren, that the question of residence requirements for voting was also raised. He said:

"The court's decision reveals only the top of the iceberg. Lurking beneath are the multitude of situations in which States have imposed residence requirements including eligibility to vote, to engage in certain professions or occupations or to attend a state-supported university. Although the court takes pains to avoid acknowledging the ramifications of its decision, its implications cannot be ignored."

"If a State would violate equal protection by denying welfare benefits to those who have recently moved interstate, then it would appear to follow that equal protection would also be denied by depriving those who have recently moved interstate of the fundamental right to vote."

Many people will wonder why residence requirements have been imposed at all on persons who are otherwise qualified to vote. The citizen theoretically has a right to go to the polls anywhere to choose a President of the United States. The mere fact that he has changed his home address does not alter the rights of citizenship. But residence has been considered a "qualification" for voting as the term is used in the Constitution, and the supposition has been that only an amendment to the Constitution could change the rule.

While millions of persons did not vote in 1968 even though they were eligible, a great number never fail to exercise the privilege of casting ballots for Federal, State and City officials.

It would not be surprising if, in the 1972 election, a substantial increase will be noted in the number who are permitted to vote as the residence requirements of the states may be erased.

Most States have absentee ballots available, but the red tape involved in using them has discouraged voters. The ballot in some states has to be taken to a notary public for an affidavit to be signed. In 1968, a million otherwise eligible voters failed to obtain absentee ballots. Sickness or disability prevented 7,000,000 from going to the polls.

Even if the voting age were lowered throughout the country to 18, it is questionable whether the younger group, between the ages of 18 and 21, would send to the polls even the 60 per cent of those of voting age who cast ballots in the last presidential election.

One of the principal reasons for the low percentage of actual voting by those of voting age is the fact that many individuals forget to register or are not informed of registration dates. While some organizations devote themselves to the task of persuading time to do so, though many states do not require registration every year. There is certainly a need for organization work to be done in the communities in order to persuade more people of voting age to go to the polls.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A few weeks ago I wrote a story about a stranger who has been in a mental institution for a long time. He wrote a note which is as sane and sound as any which arrive in the regular mail. My hunch was that New York State had filed him in a nice green cabinet and forgot him. He had no way out.

I have some friends in Buffalo and I put the arm on them to check him out. The top man is Cy King, executive editor of the Courier Express. He's a callous monster with a heart about as hard as apple sauce. Mr. King is aware that there is always a chance that some poor soul may be filed away for life within a dismal assortment of gray stones.

The man's original note to me began: "I am Jewish, 40, and a mental patient. I have been confined in two hospitals for a total of eight years and four months. I face a lifetime of imprisonment. My only crime against society is having been born schizophrenic. I am in Buffalo, and to say that the state mental hygiene law is unfair would be an understatement."

"It is downright evil. The courts are closed to me. There is no lawyer who is interested in the plight of an obscure mental patient. I have never hurt anyone. And yet, I am no longer a citizen of New York State or the United States. . . Occasionally, we hear of a mental patient who commits an act of violence. No one ever hears of all the hundreds of thousands of former patients who live out their lives quietly."

"I have an I.Q. of 13. All I want is to live my life out lawfully in a home my father owns. The courts do not have a right to pass out a life sentence to one who has never committed a crime. Hoping for a positive response."

My reply: I want you to read the rest of this column carefully. No one—even the doctors—opposes your chance for freedom. Everybody is in your corner. You write with fine logic; even the editors were impressed.

In Buffalo, Cy King (who owes you nothing) sat behind the hard wood and hard-headed desk of the editor and sent Dom Merle out to check your condition. If there is the slightest chance that you would be happy in our society, King desired to give you a fair shake and more.

Now you are going to have to listen, for a moment, and I hope, accept the findings of a first-class reporter. Here they are:

"Memo: The man is now a mental patient in a VA hospital. His father is a little hard to understand. But, according to the father: My son started acting strange after finishing a two-year army hitch in 1948. He worked for a couple of years taking care of experimental animals. About 1954, he committed himself to a state institution and in 1956 was transferred to another."

"Since he's been hospitalized, he comes home periodically on 72-hour passes.

While he is home, he stays in his room mostly, typing letters, probably a few to Jim Bishop. The father says that he won't show anyone the letters."

"Father wants him home for the Passover Holidays, but he hasn't got an okay from the hospital. He judges the future by what freedom the doctors give his son a week or two before. It amounts to waiting, and hoping."

"The father is a retired distributor of evening News. He isn't bitter about his son being confined; figures he will be discharged when the doctors feel he is ready."

"At one time, the father told me, a psychiatrist recommended brain surgery. (Author's note: This is probably a frontal lobotomy, a chance operation sometimes executed by slicing part of the memory section of the brain by cutting under the eyelids.) The father decided against the operation."

"I told the father that I may call him back later this week to see if the son is coming home on a pass. . . Dom Merle."

From all of this, to my correspondent I would suggest that you are not quite ready. We are in a society—a culture, if you please—in which the rules of behavior are ironclad. Stay a little bit longer until the doctors are ready to send you home permanently. The time will come and I will try to be in Buffalo to shake your hand.

Please bear in mind that, even though the years are dismal and endless for you, they are infinitely worse for your father. You are not to be pitied. He is. . .

Contractors Use Retired Officers to Buy Influence

WASHINGTON—The closer you study Defense contracts, the more apparent it becomes that "cronyism" is costing the taxpayers millions of dollars. Defense contractors have been able to buy Pentagon influence by hiring hundreds of generals and admirals who know how to get and keep military contracts.

They also know how to jack up the price after signing the contracts. Invariably, the contract contains escalator clauses which permit the contractor to increase his profits.

The controversial C-5A transport plane is a case in point. Lockheed Aircraft bargained to build 120 C-5A planes for $3.1 billion. The extras ran the actual cost up to $5.2 billion, a staggering $2.1 billion more than the taxpayers had originally been committed to pay. Lockheed's friends inside the Air Force allegedly doctored reports about these extra costs to save Lockheed from taking a beating on the stock market.

When you look over the list of cronies hired by Lockheed, the company's influence inside the Pentagon is easy to understand. Lockheed has 210 generals, admirals, colonels and Navy captains on its payroll—more than any other defense contractor.

The executive in charge of Lockheed's "requirements" is L.C. Craigie, a former Air Force lieutenant general. The manager in charge of "plans and requirements" is B.I. Funk, a retired Air Force Major general.

The executive secretary of the company's safety board, L.I. Davis, is a former Air Force lieutenant general. Two other high-ranking retirees, Lt. Gen. W.W. Dick, Jr., and Admiral J.H. Sides, are on the Lockheed payroll as senior military advisers.

The company's biggest contracts are to build Polaris and Poseidon missiles for the Navy. It may come as no surprise, therefore, that Lockheed has a dozen former admirals on the payroll. Another three Marine Corps generals now work for Lockheed.

In addition to Admiral Sides, the company also employs Vice Adm. C.C. Smith as management specialist; Rear Adm. R.O.

Beer, management analyst; Rear Adm. H.W. Shea, engineer specialist; Rear Adm. W.R. Smith, 3rd, research specialist; Rear Adm. P.E. Summers, program manager; Rear Adm. L.D. Coates program manager.

The three Marine Corps generals on the company payroll are Brig. Gen. J.S. Blais, program planner; Brig. Gen. R.L. Denig, Jr., group engineer; and Brig. Gen. J.F. Kinney, operations planning coordinator.

It would be interesting to know how much these retired generals and admirals have been promoting Lockheed in the back rooms of the Pentagon and Army-Navy Club.

Note: It also helps a Defense contractor to have friends on Capitol Hill. The Congressman with the most influence inside the Pentagon is House Armed Services Chairman L. Mendel Rivers. He has been able to get so many Defense contracts for his backwater South Carolina district that North Charleston businessmen gratefully raised funds to build an L. Mendel Rivers monument overlooking Rivers Avenue down the road from L. Mendel Rivers field, not far from the L. Mendel Rivers Postal Annex and the Men-Riv Navy housing development. When the local businessmen found themselves short of the necessary funds for the monument, Lockheed paid the difference.

Taxing Foundations
One of the prestigious foundations of the nation, Houston Endowment, has now come out for the taxation of foundations.

Houston Endowment was founded by Jesse Jones, the famous financial wizard of the New Deal, who as head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation managed to save hundreds of banks during the depression. The foundation which he established now owns 100 per cent of the Houston Chronicle, one of the dominant papers of Texas.

The Chronicle has urged that foundations no longer be tax-exempt.

It points out that "the 586 tax-exempt foundations (under study by Rep. Wright Patman) had a gross income of $1,079,627,732 in 1966 and assets of $15.1 billion at the close of that year. Six years earlier these assets were only $10.2 billion."

"Private foundations," concludes the Chronicle, "are an integral part of the American economy. They, as citizens, ought to share some part of the tax burden. A comprehensive study probably would show that some fair tax should be paid on billions of dollars of this and other tax-exempt properties."

Taxpayers' Revolt
The taxpayers' revolt is really making an impact. Rep. John Byrnes of Wisconsin, top Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, recently bemoaned behind closed doors: "What am I going to tell my constituents if we don't close these loopholes in the tax laws?"

Colleagues couldn't believe their ears. For Byrnes is one of the most hard-bitten foes of tax reform on the committee. He has consistently fought against repealing or reducing the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, as well as other loopholes protecting big business while soaking the middle-income brackets.

It is also significant that Byrnes is one member of the Ways and Means group who have not sponsored a single tax reform bill this year. Hitherto he hasn't believed in legislating as he talks, but the taxpayers' revolt certainly has made Byrnes change his tune.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Supreme Court Takes Over

As President Nixon scans the spectrum for a new Chief Justice of the Supreme Court he has solid public support behind him. And, contrary to some belief, the Supreme Court is not always indifferent to a President's inclinations.

Franklin D. Roosevelt proposed on February 5, 1937, his Supreme Court "packing" plan—designed to add six justices of his own choosing—but this effort was defeated by Congress which reflected the public resentment. Yet, on April 12 of the same year the Court upheld the very constitutionally doubtful Wagner Labor Relations Act. Most observers were convinced that the court got the message.

A Gallup poll indicates that about 60 per cent of the people in our country disapprove of the Supreme Court's positions, the highest ever recorded. The feeling is that the country is powerless to live and operate except in ways literally originated by the Supreme Court.

Millions seem to see today a Supreme Court whose role is to persuade us that we are still free because we can shout obscenities, mail pornography, announce treason, profane the flag, refuse to fight, refuse to take an oath in court. And all these things distract us from what we cannot do—such real and obvious liberties and the liberty to hire and fire, to choose our associates, to run our businesses, even to demand peace in our public schools.

The Supreme Court has been pushing itself increasingly into questions which are really for the legislative branch to decide. To this extent, the Supreme Court's majority has simply taken over. Then all the lower Federal courts, of course, have had to conform.

As one result, even within the Supreme Court, Justice John M. Harlan has stated in connection with a recent case: "This court can increase respect for the Constitution only if it rightly respects the limits which the Constitution places on this court. . . In the present case we exceed both. . . Our voice becomes only the voice of power, not of reason."

Millions feel that the court has leaned over backward in behalf of criminals and shown much more concern for the felons than for the community.

How come, they ask, that the Supreme Court consistently forgets Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes' indisputable maxim: "Above all rights rise the rights of the community." Listen to Pennsylvania Chief Justice John C. Bell: "The Supreme Court's decisions which shackle the police and courts make it terrifically difficult to protect society from crime and criminals and are among the principal reasons for the turmoil and near-revolutionary conditions." ditons."

Are the "rights" of the troublemakers more important than the sufferers?

The prevailing fear is that the Supreme Court's continued twisting of the Constitution and the statutes is making a shambles of government by law in our country. The end product pursued for welfare state purposes, and civil rights within it, can only be anarchy—with the consequent loss of the freedoms which are the supposed goal of judicial lawmaking.

The fundamental belief on which the United States was founded, and which still stands, is that men and women need not be victims. Here life, security and a better living for all are problems to be mastered. But the public simply refuses to concur with the sick sentimentality that condones criminality as society's fault and dismisses the individual from responsibility—an important false reading of human nature.

Yes, we do discriminate. But this is not necessarily a hostile act. "Discriminate," explains Webster: "To make a distinction; also to use discernment." The argument of the egalitarian always claims that everybody is exactly like everybody else. The argument is manifestly untrue. You and I are not exactly alike, which does not mean that either of us is better. It simply means that we are different. The Swedish are not exactly like the Mexicans, and it might be added, women are not exactly like men. The entire process of life admittedly works to the many individuals and groups unlike.

There is much we can do to make this land of ours richer and better for all the people. But there can be no suitable and successful Supreme Court that ignores the realities, manhandles the First and Fifth Amendments, writes its own majority's social and economic views into the law and, in effect, legislates as if it were a legislative body itself.

Twenty and Ten Years Ago

May 10, 1949—A.J. Anderson was elected president of Kerhonkson Lions Club at a meeting held in Indian Valley Inn.

Ulster County Republican Committee announced it will honor State Sen. Arthur H. Wicks at a dinner June 2 at Williams Lake Hotel. Sen Wicks was recently elected temporary president and majority leader of the State Senate.

May 11, 1949—Greenfield Park Hotel in the Town of Wawarsing was destroyed by fire. Loss was estimated at $50,000.

Dial equipment was installed in the Phenicia area replacing the old hand crank telephones affecting 600 customers.

May 11, 1959—Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg announced he was conducting his own investigation into the possibility that there was a scheme to impede and hamper the Ulster County investigation of conspiracy to bribe public officials.

Henry York, 67 of Saugerties, traffic manager and treasurer of Martin Cantine Co., and former village trustee died at Benedictine Hospital.

ONTEORA: Elections, TV Special

CHRISTOPHER WEIDMAN

BOICEVILLE
Onteora High School is making like the national scene what with election hoopla and television specials.

During recent weeks the corridors resembled campaign headquarters what with posters, debates, rallies and aggressive campaigns carried out in an exercise in American politics. Final showdown rally and debate took place on Election Day where 1,200 members of the school joined in the excitement. Voting for favorite candidates took place at lunch time on voting machines borrowed from the Town of Olive.

Christopher Weidman of the True Progressive Party was successful candidate for the Student Council presidency.

The TPP platform called for the formation of the student-faculty-administration committee to study student problems and try to come up with solutions. It would also generate better communication and co-operation among these three main bodies. Also outlined was a committee system, similar to that used in Congress, so that Student Council will be better equipped to handle its expanding role. Brit St. John, also a member of the TPP was elected treasurer.

Although Mark Grazier, the Progressive Realist Party candidate for president, was unsuccessful in his bid, three of his fellow candidates were: Judy Hevesi, vice president; Corinne Hutchinson, recording secretary; Mary Pat Molloy, corresponding secretary, were all elected on the PRP ticket. The platform called for the abolishment of the present homeroom representative system and replacement of it by a Student Senate, lowering the number of representatives and basing it on class, not homerooms. Also stressed was a Student Court and more school pride.

The elections were very successful in stimulating student interest in their own student government. Both parties recognized the problems in Student Council and have vowed to fight next year to bridge the communication gap and press on for better understanding among all groups at Onteora.

Meanwhile rehearsals are well underway for the upcoming television special, Barbara, set May 15 and 16.

The musical revue format was developed along the lines of the TV spectacular by Onteora's choral director, Earl Proper. Barbara Narel stars in the production, singing many of the numbers another Barbara brought to the home screen with great success. Streisand favorites such as Second Hand Rose and Don't Rain on My Parade will combine with the haunting, The Shadow of Your Smile to provide change of pace for the musical portion of the show. Colorful scenes even the peacock would envy will serve as backdrop for presentations by the talented Hancock-Peterson Dancers and the Onteora Central School Choralists.

Just to add to the TV special feel of the show Onteora's own Laugh-In boys, Ricky Heppner and Harry Jackson will be at center stage for stand up comedy. Previous appearances have broken up the audience and the performances slated next week promise to be even better.

Those connected with the production advise "Don't miss Barbara." Curtain time will be 8 p.m. both nights at the high school auditorium.

COMEDIANS — Onteora's answer to Rowan and Martin rehearse routine for their 'TV' special. Suave Harry Jackson (L) registers doubt as to the veracity of Ricky Heppner's words of the moment. They go before the lights May 15 and 16 in Barbara, a television special parody. (Freeman photo by Kruh)

NEW PALTZ: The Jet Set

NEW PALTZ Factory as well as local art and history museums. Some of the students visited St. Thomas and the entire group met the Mayor of San Juan.

Recreation was an important part of the visit also with trips to Luquillo Beach, shopping in Old San Juan and just meeting the people figuring high on the list.

With true southern island hospitality, the Republic de Columbia students hosted a number of events designed to make the New Paltz group feel right at home. An assembly was staged especially for the visitors entirely in English, a house party and a farewell banquet in the mountains featuring native foods.

The group which visited Puerto Rico during the Easter vacation is already talking of yet another trip in early summer and of course the return visit of the Puerto Rican hosts to New Paltz. The program has been carried out for several years now and still retains its popularity with both New Paltz and Puerto Rican participants.

Royal Treatment
Students from the Republic de Columbia High School greeted the New Paltz contingent on arrival and took them through the highlights of the 10-day stay.

Sightseeing took the tour group to the Rain Forest, Governor's palace, the University of Puerto Rico, Bicardi Rum

Chaperones were Alan Masters, Mrs. Susan Hobbs, Miss Rose Mary Moerbeek, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clarkson, Miss Anne Muller, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert A. J. Fiore. Fiore is the anthropology-sociology teacher at New Paltz who made the tour arrangements. Those interested in the early summer trip may contact him for details.

And while all these students were making preparations for their island adventure, Ainslie arrived at the school from Palmerston North a large city on the North Island, 100 miles from New Zealand's capital, Wellington.

Since February she has had a chance to make friends and get acquainted with both the school and surrounding area.

Some Impressions

Ainslie says she finds the school different from the all-girl school which she attended. First, there is the greater freedom in dress. In her New Zealand school everyone was required to wear a uniform. Secondly, there are the variety of courses which are offered at New Paltz. She said that her school doesn't have such courses as sociology and anthropology and she has enjoyed taking them here. There is a third difference between the school in New Zealand and this high school. The school system there is more like the English system in that there are no grades, only forms. A form consists of one year, with each student entering high school in the third form.

Ainslie, although only 16, has already graduated from high school. Because her grades were good, she was not required to go an extra year and therefore did not have to take the examination that is mandatory for graduation. She said that she could have gone on to college immediately, but felt that she was too young. When she returns to New Zealand in November, though, she will enter Massey University near her home.

Though she has not seen much of the United States, Ainslie has found that she likes it very much. She thinks that the American people are friendlier than the English and not quite as reserved. She has found, though, that life in the United States is a lot faster paced than that of New Zealand. Ainslie and her family plan to see more of the United States before they return to New Zealand.

Youth in News

While youth was making news this week one, Kingston High School student was enjoying the limelight cast by the stars.

Grace Salmi, Hudson Valley Polish Queen of 1968-69, while attending the Miss New York State pageant at Nevele in Ellenville got to meet and talk to Troy Donahue, Gloria deHaven and producer Newton White. The 17-year-old KHS sophomore has an eye on an acting career and found the encounter most helpful and encouraging. She is the daughter of Mrs. Kathryn Smith of St. Remy.

A Kingstonian who plans music as a career had an opportunity to appear as soloist at Ithaca College recently. Dennis T. Searles of Kingston, RD 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Thomas Searles was featured on alto saxophone in the presentation of Heiden's Sonata for Alto Saxophone and Piano. He is a senior in the school of music at Ithaca College and is a 1965 graduate of Kingston High School.

Also presenting a solo performance soon will be Jeanne Jansen of New Paltz. She is scheduled to appear in the annual spring concert at Dutchess Community College Monday night. If the weatherman cooperates, the concert will be presented in an outdoor setting the following day for patients at Castle Point Veterans Administration Hospital.

In the spotlight of a different nature was Richard J. Korn of Ellenville, a political science major at Adelphi University. He addressed the Rockland, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange County district of the New York State Association of Student Councils meeting in conference at Nanuet High School recently.

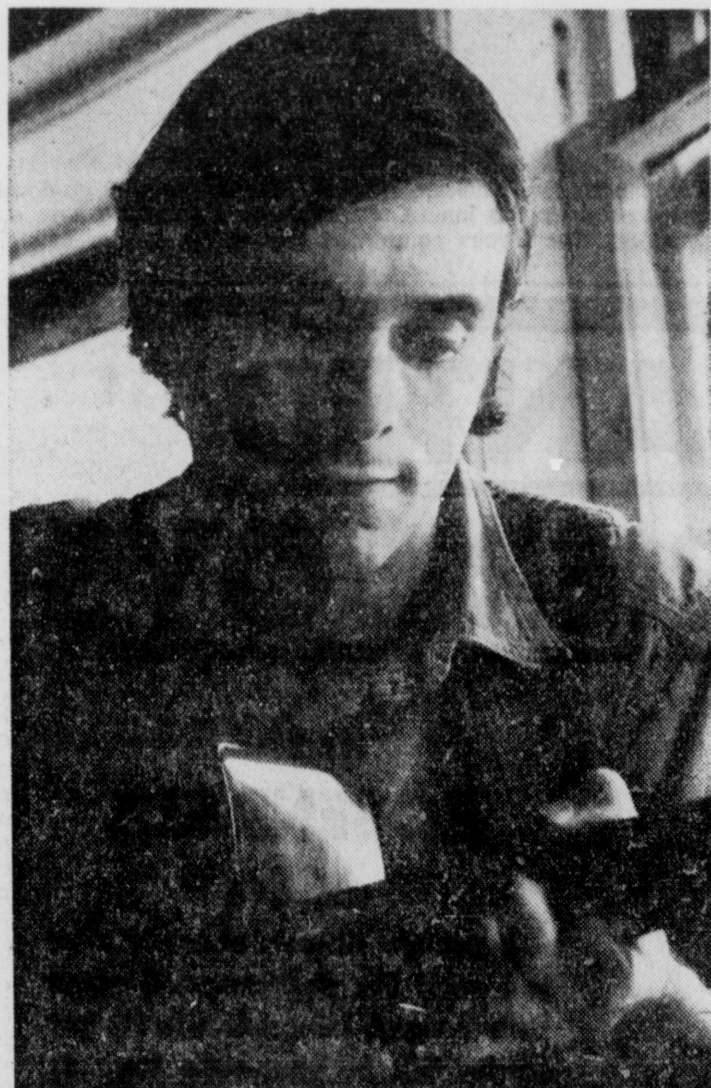

Korn, a former RUSO president, urged student leaders in attendance to provide an "imaginative, creative and stimulating student government organization."

The guest speaker is the son of Attorney and Mrs. Philip Korn of Ellenville.

Word comes from Newburgh that Valerie Arena, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Arena of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., formerly of New Paltz, has been elected president of the Mt. St. Mary College student body for the 1969-70 academic year.

Valerie is presently president of the junior class and is a member of the student affairs council, finance committee, Sociology Club and orientation committee for the Class of 1972. In her sophomore year she was on the academic affairs council and was a member of the college basketball team.

Entertainment Time Has Folksingers in the Fore

FOLKSINGER JOHN LIPMAN

KINGSTON This week folk-pop, next week ballad and blues—Hobbit fare varies to suit patrons taste.

There is still time to get in on the weekend show featuring John Lipman, folksinger, tonight he will be performing at the Ulster Coffeehouse for the 8 o'clock show at the Fair Street Reformed Church site.

Always adding new numbers to his already extensive repertoire, Lipman will present a program which ranges from ancient Russian folksongs to the more modern folk-pop field.

Next weekend the Hobbit will be presenting two female folksingers with widely contrasting styles.

On Friday, the featured singer will be Ellen Macolwaine, doing her powerful and exciting swamp blues. Ellen recently auditioned at the Hobbit and treated the coffeehouse to some of its wilder musical moments as the audience joined her in singing, clapping and stomping the blues.

The Saturday night show on May 17 will feature Jeanine McCullough whose special style is the melodious folk ballad. She is returning to the Hobbit after several appearances last season at the former location.

Future entertainment features at the Hobbit will include a return engagement by the popular Kinsmen and a concert by the Collarmen. Dates for these and other performances will be announced. Shows are held Friday and Saturday nights starting 8 o'clock. Doors open at 7:30 and auditions are held prior to the show. Arrangements may be made by contacting Tom Phillips, coffeehouse manager.

Teenagers from Ulster County have been invited to attend a Poughkeepsie concert next Friday featuring The Contenders, a folk-rock group from the Catskills Coffeehouse, Lexington, Ky. The event will be held at the new YMCA, South Avenue, Poughkeepsie, jointly sponsored by a three county interdenominational committee of churches, Inter Varsity Christian Fellowship and Hudson Valley Youth for Christ.

The Contenders, staff members of the Christ Center urban project, have sung throughout the United States in churches, schools and universities. Two months this spring were spent on tour in Vietnam, Hong Kong and Taiwan under the auspices of the armed forces. They are currently on tour through the northeast.

All teens of Dutchess, Orange and Ulster Counties may attend.

Also on the coffeehouse, folk singer circuit in Ulster County are the Stain Glass Window, operated weekends for Sautees Reformed Church and the Cave-In at New Paltz Methodist Church hall for older teens and college students of that area.

RVCS Bandsmen Win, Seniors Take Tour

STONE RIDGE Rondout Valley Central School bandsmen really brought home if not the bacon certainly the honors.

The senior concert band for the third straight year earned the highest honor rating in the New York State School Music Association's annual competition in Albany recently. This rating has never been awarded another band in Ulster County.

Many of the 33 soloists and six ensembles earned fine ratings in many grades. Some of the more outstanding were eight students who received the honor solorating of 6-A. They were Howard Altholz, Wendy Rose, Keith Gorham, Jody Tefft, Robert Taylor, Daniel Schliffmann, Lana Slater and Caroline Robertaccio.

Meanwhile the Rondout Valley Middle School Cadet Band took honors in its division. A total of 110 students journeyed to the competition from RVCS. Travel was in the stars for RV seniors yesterday as they visited the big city on the annual class trip.

Circle Line boat tour around Manhattan, tours of the United Nations and Empire State Buildings plus trips to the circus, Radio City Music Hall and Hayden Planetarium were on the afternoon agenda. Broadway footlights and Shea stadium arc lights occupied the evening hours for five separate groups of entertainment seekers with different tastes.

With this year's senior in the throes of pre-graduation activities, next year's seniors are making plans.

The 1970 staff of the Council Fires yearbook staff attended a conference at Saratoga Springs this week to brush up on technical data needed for the publication. They also got a word to the wise about types of problems to look for and how to solve them.

Much work must be accomplished before school opens in the fall and staffers are struggling to complete as much as they can before the end of the semester.

Teen Scene Sees Youth Power Potential—If

By LEI

Recently there's been a lot of discussion of the possibility that Kingston teenagers may form a Youth Corps, something of the order of a younger Vista, to operate in Kingston. The young people behind the idea feel that by organizing the Youth Corps they'll be able to work as a body for the needs of the community—and also, hopefully, to allow adults to see kids can work together in a constructive manner.

Ideally, the goals of the budding Youth Corps are really solid, and if the Corps becomes a functioning reality, it could form the pattern for a movement all over the country. Right now, there is no single program in which all high-school-age people, regardless of their group and high school affiliations, color, interests, abilities, sex and vocations can work together on projects for the good of the entire community.

The Fields

There are many fields—recreation, conservation, civil rights, education, and many others—that badly need the energies, enthusiasm, and fresh outlook of today's young. And certainly, adult opinions of the young could stand some upgrading. It would be a strong item for teenagers to have a goal toward which they could devote their spare time.

Unfortunately, however, we can all make long lists of stereophonic, chrome-plated, super-king-sized, caramel-coated fiascos that all started out as good ideas. Idealism, sadly enough, often ought to be the last consideration in starting such a program.

How well can the Youth Corps function? Will it be able to fulfill its promise? That depends on many factors, of which three are the most important.

The Factors

● The Program. All the gung-ho in the world isn't going to be worth a bottle cap if there isn't any ho for it to gung to. The Youth Corps isn't going to keep the respect of anyone—teenager or adult—if it winds up being all rapping and no action, or all action, no planning. Or if it's going to fritter away time and energy on Mickey Mouse projects. Will the Youth Corps be able to inspire the confidence needed to be entrusted with a hand in solving the major problems facing this area? And, if so, will the Corps be willing and able to do the studying, planning, and working necessary to do a creditable job?

● The Kids. The best program in the world will fail flatter than a hot ice cube if nobody will get (and stay) interested. The program must have the support and work of everyone—honor students, yuppies, dropouts, heroes, soul brothers, clothes horses, hot-rodgers, swingers, and just plain people. They'll have to forget categories, and get cracking together, each according to his abilities, knowing that what helps one, helps us all.

● The Adults. Without their support, the kids might as well fold up their kites and blow away. Adults will have to give the Corps the green light to work on responsible programs with a worthwhile goal. They will have to make the fine distinction between helping the kids row the boat, and taking over and swamping the craft. They will have to be able to offer constructive help without nagging, and support without shoving. And they'll have to keep an open mind, bear with the growing pains, and allow the Corps time to prove itself.

Will the Youth Corps be a credit to its founders—or will it, like some adult projects, dissolve in a cloud of mismanagement, disorganizations, and hassling? That's up to us—and up to you. It's your can of caterpillars. Whether they turn into butterflies or carpet beetles will be up to every citizen in this area—and the corps we take from here.

Rosendale May Bid for '70 World Ski Tryouts

ROSENDALE
Rosendale Outing Club has been given an opportunity to bid for the prestigious United States World Ski Championship tryouts next January and must make a decision no later than Sunday night.

Mayor William F. (Bill) Curran said a meeting of the Outing Club and all other interested persons in the Town of Rosendale will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at the Rosendale fire house.

"This is the most momentous decision in our club's history," said Curran, "and I am anxious to see every person in Rosendale and Ulster County interested in promoting international ski jumping at the meeting."

Curran acknowledged receipt of a communication from the United States Ski Association notifying the Rosendale club that its 70-meter hill at Mt. Joppenberg is eligible for the two-weekend competition next January.

Slated in January

"The tryouts will be held on the weekends of Jan. 17-18 and Jan. 24-25," said Curran. "They would bring to Rosendale between 40 and 50 of the best ski jumpers in the United States strictly by invitation."

Six or eight jumpers would qualify for the right to represent the United States in the World Championships to be held in Czechoslovakia next year.

Meanwhile, clearing the way for the Rosendale bid, if they decide to make it, the United States Eastern Amateur Ski Association has granted the Outing Club permission to switch the New York State Championships from the weekend of February 7-8.

Curran revealed that the Outing Club would have to furnish transportation for 12 members of the U. S. National team and the overall total of competitors for the world tryouts.

"This would entail an expenditure of nearly $2,000," said Curran. "We would have to lodge them for a week before the first tryouts and have Joppenberg Hill ready and available for the entire week preceding the first trials."

"This means," he went on, "that the services of a minimum of 50 persons would be required and it is absolutely essential that these volunteers are available before we make a decision on submitting our bid."

The mayor said the Nordics Competitions Committee of the United States Ski Association will award the site some time in June.

"Submitting the bid doesn't necessarily mean we're assured of getting it," said Curran. "But I think the fact we were invited to bid indicates that our jumping site in Rosendale is steadily attracting national attention."

"The most crucial factor involved here," the mayor went on, "is manpower. Money can be raised but recruiting qualified volunteer personnel is something else again. That's the crucial issue before the meeting Sunday night."

Rozelle Is Optimistic on Football Realignment

NEW YORK (UPI)—Commissioner Pete Rozelle remained optimistic Friday there would be a speedy solution to the stalemate issue of realigning the 26-team professional football family.

"I feel there has to be a solution by Saturday," said the harried commissioner who has been forced to carry the ball in the negotiations to achieve a league balance for the 1970 season.

"I feel more confident about a decision now than I did a week ago, but there are still some things to be worked out," Rozelle said.

He expressed the optimism as pro football owners sat down for their 12th session on realignment.

Their major problem is to find three National Football League teams willing to become members of the American Conference of the NFL.

Under terms of the merger plan the 26 teams in the two leagues will be known as the National Football League, consisting of two conferences—National and American.

13 Teams Each

Each conference will consist of 13 teams and each of the two conferences will be made up of three divisions composed of four, four and five teams.

Rozelle said it was possible that the final determination of the three NFL teams to move to the American Conference would be his responsibility, but for him to be given this authority, the NFL would have to vote in his favor. "It has been discussed," said Rozelle of a proposal for him to pick the three teams to leave the older league.

Baltimore has been mentioned as one of the clubs willing to shift to the American Conference. Others mentioned are Atlanta, New Orleans, Minnesota and Philadelphia.

It became apparent after a marathon 11-hour meeting Thursday that the NFL owners, ready to give Rozelle the authority to select the three teams.

Rozelle Optimistic

Rozelle said he was more optimistic now because "some technical problems were settled Thursday."

The realignment meetings were initiated in March at Palm Springs, Calif., and were resumed in New York last week. They broke off last Friday, but started again on Wednesday of this week.

First progress in the talks came a week ago when the owners finally agreed to realign the 26 teams into two 13-team conferences. They also agreed on interleague play. In addition, the owners reached accord on a seven-game post-season playoff of plan involving eight teams—the two survivors from the two conferences would meet in the Super Bowl.

Under the merger agreement, the New York Giants, San Francisco Forty Niners and Los Angeles Rams were granted immunity from moving from their current cities to the NFL. The three cities were labeled "untouchables" because of television consideration.

THE COOZ—Bob Cousy, veteran Boston Celtics star and more recently coach at Boston College, was announced in Cincinnati today at a press conference as the new coach of the Cincinnati Royals, this city's entry in the NBA. While Cousy makes his remarks, chairman of the board Max Jacobs, who made the announcement, listens to whispered remarks by the club's new business manager Joe Axelson, right. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Cousy to Give Royals Five New Look

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Royals probably will have a different look next season when they begin play under a new head coach, former Boston Celtics great Bob Cousy.

Cousy was named Friday morning to replace Ed Jucker as the Royals head coach, signing for a three year contract of an undisclosed amount that reportedly includes stock options as well as a large cash settlement.

This will be Cousy's first professional coaching job and his first real contact with the sport of pro basketball since his retirement from the Celtics in 1963.

Cousy said here Friday that he had not planned to re-enter the coaching ranks so quickly after leaving Boston College after six years.

Feels Like Lombardi

"When I quit as coach at Boston College two months ago,

I went through the same horrendous withdrawal symptoms Vince Lombardi suffered after he quit coaching the Packers," Cousy said. I thought I could sit out a year to see how it affected me, but I found I couldn't last that long."

During his tenure at Boston College, Cousy's teams compiled a 117-34 won-lost record, played three times in the National Invitational Tour-namment (NIT) and twice in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tourney. They were the NIT runnersup last season.

Cousy describes himself as a "fast break man" dating back to his days with the Celtics, and he stated that this is the type of basketball he wants to see in Cincinnati.

Two Fundamentals

"The two fundamentals of professional basketball are defense and rebounding," the former Boston backcourt star said. "I plan to emphasize this type of play here."

A number of Royals players were on hand for the press conference Friday, and most of them were apparently surprised at the selection, despite continuing rumors that Cousy had the job.

Ed Jucker, who had one year to run on his three-year contract, said he also was very surprised at the news.

"When I woke up this morning," Jucker said Friday at his home, "I was the head coach."

Royals owner Max Jacobs offered Jucker a job with the organization, but the former head coach said he would "have to hear more details about what they have in mind before I say anything."

Reid Leads in Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Golf's young lions are roaring again, chiefly a fellow who would pass for a matinee idol, Sam Snead's nephew and a tiny South African who is not yet old enough to vote.

Steve Reid, handsome enough to make a career for himself in Hollywood, carved a four-under-par 67 out of the par 35-36-71, 7,138-yard Pecan Valley Country Club course Thursday and takes a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the $100,000 Texas Open.

Reid, who at 32 ranks as one of the older members of the game's younger generation, holds that slender margin over Jess Carlyle Snead, 26, nephew of Sam, and Bobby Cole, the smallest gent who turns 21 on Sunday.

There were seven players jammed up at two-under-par 69 and another seven bunched at one-under-par 70.

Included in the 69 bracket were veterans Dale Douglass, Doug Sanders and Bert Yancey.

Kosco Finds Love In Los Angeles

By UPI

Andy Kosco can finally unpack his bags. They love him in Los Angeles.

Kosco, who "hates to move around," staked a strong claim to permanent residence in the City of the Angels with two homers and a single Friday night as he paced the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 13-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The former New York Yankee and Minnesota Twin, the answer to Los Angeles' prayer for a strong right-handed hitter, upped his home run total to six for the season and his runs-batted-in to 22.

"I hope I've found a home here in L.A.," the 27-year-old Ohioan said. "I just don't like all this moving."

Kosco, who was traded by the Yankees last year to the Dodgers for pitcher Mike Kekich, said he liked playing for New York, but "you're happy wherever you're playing, as long as it's the majors."

He showed good power for New York in 1968 as he clubbed 15 homers and drove in 59 runs. Friday night wasn't his best, however. He remembered a game three weeks ago when he drove in six runs with a grand slam homer and a two-run double. "I prefer to hit with men on base," he said, "you apply yourself a little more."

Words to lift the spirit of the puncheon Angelenos, who managed only 67 homers as a team last year.

In other, mostly rain-soaked, NL games, San Francisco whipped Chicago 11-1, Cincinnati beat Montreal 8-5, in an abbreviated 6 1/2 inning game, and St. Louis edged San Diego, 7-6. Houston at New York and Atlanta at Philadelphia were postponed because of rain.

Andrews Sets Pace For Boston

By UPI

Mike Andrews, generally considered one of the least productive of the Boston Red Sox at the plate, is beginning to make his presence felt.

Andrews drove in 45 runs last season to rank sixth among the Boston regulars, he smashed a bases-loaded triple in the ninth inning Friday night to snap a 2-2 tie and lift the Red Sox to their sixth straight victory, a 7-2 triumph over the California Angels.

The three runs batted in gave Andrews 19 for the season, tying him with Carl Yastrzemski for the club lead.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota downed Detroit 6-2, Kansas City toppled Baltimore 4-2, Oakland nipped New York 3-2, Seattle blanked Washington 2-0 and the Chicago-Cleveland game was postponed because of cold weather and wet grounds.

Dear Abby

May Lose Daughter

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN.
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I have never written to you before, but then I have never had a 16-year-old daughter before either.

Gloria has had a couple of movie dates, but the boy's parents took them and brought them home.

Last Sunday another boy, who has been to our home several times, asked Gloria's Daddy if he could take Gloria to the prom. To everyone's surprise, Dad said yes, and Gloria has been thrilled ever since.

Now the problem: Last night this boy came by and as he was leaving Dad saw him kiss Gloria goodnight. Now Dad says Gloria can't go to the prom with this boy unless he (Dad) takes them and brings them home. Gloria says she would rather stay home.

I say, Dad's taking them is better than not going at all. Don't you think Gloria should be allowed to go with this boy in his car? They planned to double with another couple.

DEAR TORN: I don't blame Gloria for not wanting her Dad to chauffeur her and her date to the prom. Better tell Dad that if Gloria has had the proper upbringing he won't have to worry about her behavior at age 16. And if he insists on chaperoning her much longer not to be surprised if Gloria decides to move out of the house at the earliest possible moment.

DEAR ABBY: A month ago last Monday, my younger brother (he was 60) passed away after a lingering illness. He had been sick for two years and his last months were spent in a hospital. I went to visit him very often and brought him many things to cheer him up. Last week I received a letter from my brother's widow, THANKING me for being so "kind" to her husband.

I am very hurt, Abby, this man was MY beloved brother for 30 years before he was her husband, and I do not have to be "thanked" for being "kind" to him during his illness.

I want to tell this sister-in-law exactly how I feel, but my children say I should let it go. Well, I am not going to let it go. Am I wrong?

GRIEVING SISTER DEAR ABBY: I think you are. Apparently when your sister-in-law was writing her "thank you" messages, she remembered your many kindnesses and did not want to slight you. Let it go. Your sister-in-law has enough to worry about right now.

DEAR ABBY: I think you missed the point in the letter from "Worried" whose husband was overly friendly to his sister-in-law, and said it was done by the Eskimos.

The key was in the last sentence: "I answer his needs every time he asks me." Abby, if wives could only realize that a husband needs a little enthusiastic cooperation now and then. Why should he have to ASK? A husband wants to be chased around the bedroom and know that he is answering his wife's needs, too. Any woman who waits for her husband to "ask" her has no kick coming if he answers the needs of some outside ladies who will certainly let him know they "need" him and will appreciate his answering those needs.

So, Dear Abby, please tell wives to use a little initiative occasionally, and don't wait to be "asked" — or they may be too late.

R. B. HOUSTON DEAR R. B.: Thank you for the "key," which unlocks one of the most important locks of wedlock.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married to a wonderful young man for eight years, but the way Sheldon reacts to certain situations has me completely baffled.

For instance we have two children, and both times I was pregnant Sheldon had morning sickness. And he really was sicker with it than I was. When I had my babies, HE went into labor. So help me, I am not joking. Then when our little boy had his tonsils out, Sheldon actually got a sore, swollen throat. Is this normal, and what should I do?

NANCY DEAR NANCY: You are married to a very sensitive, sympathetic man. Cherish him.

One of our regular contributors to this column played today's hand in the Open Pairs at the Spring Nationals. He was proud of the way he played the hand and the played it well. His analysis that he made his contract against perfect defense was not quite equal to his play since East and West could have beaten him one trick if either had been on his toes.

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and shifted to the nine of trumps. West's ace gobbled up South's king and the spade continuation was won by dummy's eight. A heart was led and finessed successfully. Then South cashed the ace of hearts entered dummy with the seven of trumps and led a club toward his hand.

East had his choice of death by shooting or by hanging. If he rose with the ace of clubs South would be able to discard his losing heart on the queen. Actually East ducked, whereupon South won with his king, discarded dummy's low club on the king of diamonds and threw East in with the ace of clubs. East had to play a club or a diamond. It did not matter which because South discarded his deuce of hearts and ruffed in dummy.

Where did East and West go wrong on the defense?

East should have returned a diamond at trick two or West should have led a diamond instead of his small trump at once the diamond was opened South to take his discard from dummy early and the end play would never develop.

fin de siecle (fahn duh-SYE-kl')
the decadent, concluding years of the nineteenth century
After six months of research, the historian concluded that the turbulent fin de siecle was an era of salacious literature and obscene art.
The dubious, late years of the nineteenth century, commonly known as the fin de siecle, was a period of social upheaval and political confusion.

'Shadow' and the Ratings

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—"Shadow Game," a 90-minute teleplay seen Wednesday, was the first major drama special to come under CBS-TV's new policy permitting publication of advance reviews of its shows. And, according to the network, it got a very strong rating, including a 40.0 share of the measured audience. Says a network announcement: "This is the largest National Arbitron (rating) for any 'CBS Playhouse' ever presented."

Overwhelmed Competition The CBS-TV announcement notes that "Shadow Game," which dealt with a group of persons trapped overnight in a business office during a power blackout, completely overwhelmed the following competitive programs in the ratings: NBC-TV's "Kraft Music Hall," NBC-TV's "The Outsider" and ABC-TV's Wednesday night movie, "Ride Beyond Vengeance," a Chuck Connors Western.

How much of the rating was due to advance published reviews of the drama? No one, of course, can say with certainty. At NBC-TV, which wholly opposes CBS-TV's policy of advance reviews, a spokesman says such writing before a show goes on make absolutely no difference in the ratings.

What he means, of course, is that advance praise or knocks make no difference—a very debatable point. For he cannot mean advance mention of any kind—or else there would be no point in the networks having publicity departments.

CBS-TV, however you look at it, is being very smart about all this. The best way to stimulate interest in any show is to get a lot of advance talk about it—and not with the usual bland

The 51 Per Cent Zoning Vote -- A View From Both Sides

JOHN MACHIONE has taken a great deal of criticism, most of it justifiable, we think, about his voting for the 51 per cent proposal at Tuesday's Council meeting.

The record shows that Machione voted against the same legislation on March 16, 1964. Perhaps one of the reasons for the criticism is that Machione wasn't just one of the boys who voted for the amendment to the zoning code deleting the 51 per cent requirement in '64. He was not only the majority leader but the chairman of the committee (Laws and Rules) that sponsored the legislation. And yet, he was "proud" to vote for the opposite legislation on Tuesday night.

Surprisingly, only two aldermen took the opportunity to sock it to Machione at the Council meeting, Emilio Primo and Ed Norton. Primo was just getting his shots in but Norton was way out of line criticizing Machione for reversing his vote.

Fact is, Norton did exactly the same thing. Norton voted with the Democratic minority in '64, making this remark in defense of the 51 per cent provision, "How much fairer can we get?"

On Tuesday night, Norton, after pointing out that Machione had been the majority leader in 1964, remembered that former Corporation Counsel Harry Gold had recommended the change (dropping the 51 per cent) to conform with state requirements. Norton concluded that he would stick with Gold's 1964 ruling. Somehow Ed forgot to mention that he had voted against Gold's ruling five years ago.

We'll say one thing for Machione, though. Once he starts down the winding road of confusion, he stays on it. John voted against a motion by Cliff Sinsabaugh to table the legislation for further study but then once it was passed asked that it be forwarded to the state attorney's office for a ruling on its legality.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

PERHAPS IT'S BEST to write it off as a bad night for Machione. One thing we are not about to write off, however, is Machione's continuing silence on the doings of the Democratic majority, including the mayor. Machione is the only elected Republican among the 16 elected city officials. He is the opposition. The only opposition the powerful Democrats have. And yet he is silent.

In speaking to other Republicans on Machione's silence, we've found some support for him. The pros say the time to make statements is at election time. We say keep up a running skirmish, if warranted. Get it on the record. There are 4,000 Republicans in this city hoping that reports of the death of their party are not grossly exaggerated.

SPEAKING of gross exaggerations, Mayor Garraghan gave the horse laugh to a current popular rumor circulating that he intends to make a deal with mayoral nominee Frank Koenig and run for a third term. Garraghan has made himself quite clear on how he feels about running for mayor of Kingston. He won't do it. His health won't permit it. He's going to run for governor instead, presumably for therapeutic purposes. Incidentally, Don Gregory deserves the everlasting gratitude of his party for taking on the unenviable job of trying to get Garraghan to go for another term, before the convention in March.

Don, still recovering from shell-shock, said the conversation (in the mayor's office) went something like this:

Gregory: Hi, Ray. How ya feeling?
Mayor: If one more person asks me to run again (voice rising), I'll quit. I'll walk right out of here. Now what do you want?

Gregory: You know, Ray, that Koenig is going to make a helluva candidate!

BITS AND PIECES — Rumors that Jim Madden, the 13th Ward's Democratic alderman, may not seek reelection, have some basis. Madden told us that a conflicting job schedule (he usually works nights) may force him to withdraw. He has until Tuesday (last day for filing petitions) to make a decision.

Mayor Garraghan, sometimes referred to as the Lone Ranger, will lose his faithful Tonto on May 15. Stan Petro, the city treasurer, will leave on Thursday to take a job with the State of New York National Bank. The 15th will be a day of mixed feelings for Petro, it's also his 31st birthday. Stan said the bank made an offer he couldn't refuse. Still Garraghan will miss his staunchest supporter at City Hall, a man who backed him up, often when no one else would. But then Ray's a short timer, too. He only has about 7½ months to go.

LONELY NEWS HOUNDS—Aaron Klein stopped by the press table during the Council meeting and offered the following observation, "If any more of you guys throw your hat in the ring there'll be no one around to cover the news." We're wondering what's going to happen if Jim Thompson and Jim Tyrrell wind up on the same ticket. They certainly won't be at a loss for words.

Nixon on Working Weekend

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI)—President Nixon, tanned and relaxed from daily yachting, assembled Cabinet-level advisers at his seaside villa today for policy talks on a range of controversial issues including campus unrest and the draft.

The conferees, who do not always see eye to eye, including Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Health and Welfare Secretary Robert H. Finch. There was no set agenda, according to Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler. The free-for-all meeting, scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. EDT, was expected to include welfare proposals Nixon has been studying here and plans to broaden the coverage of unemployment compensation.

Political Considerations
In addition to other key White House staffers, the presence of Rogers C. B. Morton, chairman of the Republican National Committee, indicated GOP political considerations are involved.

Nixon kept mum on the new Viet Cong peace plans as pressure mounted from congressional leaders, including Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, to give the proposal serious consideration.

So far the Florida White House has steadfastly refused to indicate the President's thinking on the Communist proposal for a coalition government to supervise free elections in South Vietnam. Under repeated questioning, Ziegler would say only the President is pursuing "a course of action" to end the war.

Ziegler also said Nixon is "aware" that some senators are breaking their silence and losing their patience with the administration's Vietnam approach.

The Chief Executive arranged for New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, his special emissary to Latin America, to stop off Sunday before departing on his fact-finding tour.

There was no plan for Nixon to see Secretary of State William P. Rogers prior to his departure Monday for Vietnam and other countries in the Far East.

In the past two days, the White House has announced a series of campus appearances by Nixon in June with indications the President may speak out again against student disorders.

In revealing that Nixon would make the commencement address at Ohio State University on June 7 in its big stadium, Ziegler stressed its size—more than 45,000 students on four campuses with a graduating class of 4,458.

The President went boating for five hours on Biscayne Bay Friday with his close friend and neighbor Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo. It was the second day in a row that Nixon has relaxed aboard the Julie, a 64-foot cabin cruiser.

Nixon was not expected to return to Washington until Monday, missing his daughter Tricia's masked ball Saturday night and a quiet family get-together on Mother's Day.

School Budgets Are Defeated At Record Rate in New York

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The defeat of local school budgets by unhappy taxpayers is being reported across the state at what appears to be a record rate again this year.

A statewide survey by United Press International shows that at least 46 school budgets have been voted down since balloting began early this month.

Budgets are voted on in 763 districts across the state in May June and July.

Higher real estate taxes used to balance the school spending program apparently is the main reason for the defeats.

The continuing jump in the cost of teachers salaries and the $25 million cut in state aid to local school districts this year has forced the taxes up.

76 Lost Last Year
Last year, a record 76 budgets not yet passed the 49 defeated last year, may be significant for another reason.

He said many of the 763 districts in the state which vote on their budgets have postponed their annual meetings from the usual May date to June or July. In some cases, he said, this is because new contracts have not yet been drawn with teachers unions under the Taylor Law.

But in other cases, the meetings are postponed to give the school boards more time to either sell the voters on the budgets, or else make it a little smaller.

Bonds Turned Down
Along with the budget defeats, there also are numerous reports across the state of defeats of school bond issues and multi-district BOCES programs.

In Rensselaer County, voters from 11 school districts defeated a proposed $4.25 million county education facilities center by an 11-1 margin.

All eight districts voting in Rockland County this week approved their budgets. In one of these districts, however, a separate proposal on the ballot to finance special school cafeteria, transportation and extra teaching positions was defeated. There is at least one bright note in the school budget picture this year. Last year, 75 of the 76 school districts which initially turned down budgets eventually gave approval to some kind of spending program.

One district, Greenport in Suffolk County, never approved a budget and the school board was forced to operate on a strict contingency budget.

This year, Greenport was one of the first districts in the state to give approval of its proposed budget for the coming year.

base for guerrillas near Hasbaya Village in southern Lebanon 20 miles southeast of Sidon.

Al Ahran said the Lebanese proposal would give "guerrillas the opportunity to act without exposing Lebanese territory and army to threat of Israeli retaliation."

Guerrilla groups denied seeing any such proposal. Al Ahran said the guerrillas were "determined to operate from all fronts surrounding Israel."

In Cairo, the newspaper Al-Ahram said today Lebanon would demand a top-level conference on Arab guerrillas if negotiations in Beirut break down and the commandos keep fighting with Lebanese troops.

The semi-official newspaper said the Lebanese proposed a

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Council of the Women's National Republican Club gave Mrs. Richard M. Nixon a gift Thursday—a 50-pound pair of elephant heads painted on marble. Wear Your Favorite Furbelows!

Remember when Wilson was in the White House? When the country was enjoying an unprecedented boom before the big bust? When the thing to do was drink up before Volstead had his way?

The Woodstock Artists' Association remembers because it was founded back in those days. And to celebrate its 50th Season, it's tossing a whizz-bang of a party that no one will want to miss.

Dressed as Suffragettes and Gibson Girls, local ladies will be kicking up their heels and tossing their curls at the WAA's upcoming 1920 Gala Jamboree. Shifters, sharpies, Arrow collar men, collegiates and bobbed hair bandits will hob-nob with the Bohemians and the demi-monde of the Latin Quarter, Montmartre and Greenwich Village when the WAA opens its gallery on the art colony's Village Green to the public Saturday, May 17 at 9 p. m. for this bash of bashes. So dust off your skimmers and derbies, don your furbelows and flapper clothes and join in. You'll have a chance to turkey trot, bunny hug and toddle to the strains of your favorite bands.

Food and Prizes

The WAA will also put on the feed bag, offer prizes and supply fizz for your hip flasks. Dress up as funny as you like because the glorious Roaring Twenties are just around the corner again. The aim is to raise money for other events to celebrate the Artists' Association's half century mark, and tickets are selling for $15 per couple.

The Gallery on the Green will be known as The Artists' Hangout for the night of May 17 and local artists have promised decor for the party that will be both daring and nostalgic. Guests will be swept back to The Aspirin Years, and there's no telling who you might meet.

So hop into your Reos and Packards, fill your rumble seats and running boards with friends, and drive on over to the shindig. But remember that only 100 tickets will be sold, so get yours early by phoning 679-9131.

"THE GREAT SEBASTIANS" is the play selected by Kingston's Coach House Players as its annual spring production. All about mind readers and once a vehicle on Broadway for Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, "Sebastians" will be presented May 15, 16 and 17 in the J. Watson Bailey School auditorium by a Coach House cast, directed by Bill Skilling. Curtain will be at 8:30 each night. Seen in this rehearsal scene are (L-R) Kingston actor Pat Bottino, Elizabeth Askue of Hurley (seated), and, pointing an accusing finger, Samuel Tersiere of Saugerties. (Freeman photo by Krub).

Woodstock Playhouse Scheduling Top Hits from Broadway and Off

WOODSTOCK PLAYHOUSE—

If it is sometimes difficult for us to believe that we're really getting older and that time flies, both facts were brought home to us with a flourish this week when the Woodstock Playhouse announced its 32nd consecutive season begins this June.

Seems impossible that summer stock has been holding forth at the rustic looking but far from weather-beaten art colony theatre for more than three decades—but it has. And summer 1969 promises to bring what sounds like truly superlative entertainment to the venerable boards of the Playhouse.

Already definitely set for the summer season are three recent Broadway hits: Cactus Flower, the long-run comedy success which starred Lauren Bacall on stage and will star Ingrid Bergman in the movie version; There's a Girl in My Soup, another highly humorous play; and You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running, a hilarious modern day farce.

Dana Wynter has been added to the cast of producer Ross Hunter's "Airport," the movie starring Burt Lancaster and Dean Martin.

Also slated for the coming season is one of off-Broadway's most acclaimed theatre pieces, In White America.

And that's not all. Under consideration for production are such excellent plays as the highly successful Scuba Duba; Arthur Miller's moving drama, The Price; Cartoonist Jules Feiffer's Little Murders, a candid comment on society today; the ever-popular Three Penny Opera; and The Man in the Glass Booth, still playing to sell-out crowds on Broadway.

Also being considered are two new one-acters which would be seen here prior to their New York production; the brilliant musicals, Mame and Cabaret; Edward Albee's Everything in the Garden; the Shakespearean-based Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead; comic Woody Allen's Please Don't Drink the Water; the well-received Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris; and Fortune in Men's Eyes.

If all this sounds like June, July and August entertainment you don't want to miss, then you should know that the Playhouse is again offering its unique season ticket. This ducat entitles its holder to 10 admissions to the theatre on any weekday including Fridays and Sundays. Its value will also be honored on Saturdays and holidays if the difference in price is paid. The ticket can be used at any time by any number of people; once a week or all in one night if desired—and is good for all dramas, comedies and musicals offered this summer.

Playhouse owner Edgar Rosenblum says he feels this season ticket is "still one of the great theater bargains offered anywhere." The price paid for 10 admissions on the season ticket would be almost double if tickets were purchased individually. In addition, says Rosenblum, each card is numbered and registered with the Playhouse in case of loss or theft, providing a seasonal safeguard.

A note of warning for eager theatre-goers, however. For the past four years, the entire quota of these tickets has been sold out—and the Playhouse does not print any more than the original amount offered.

They're now being offered to the general public, and those desiring to order season tickets entitling them to an exciting summer of entertainment, should do so immediately. Contact the Woodstock Playhouse, P.O. Box 268, Woodstock, N.Y. 12498.

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT

JOHN HELD'S well-remembered cartoons of the Roaring Twenties poked fun at the fads and foibles of a generation that has become today's senior citizens. His "The Long and the Short of It" cartoon, shown here, seems a perfect advertisement for the 1920 Gala Jamboree being sponsored by the Woodstock Artists' Association to celebrate its 50th season on Saturday, May 17.

The Great Sebastians

Kingston's Coach House Players, currently in its 19th year as the sponsor of entertaining productions for the Mid-Hudson Valley public, is in the final stages of rehearsal for its latest play. The local thespians will present "The Great Sebastians" on the evenings of May 15, 16 and 17 at Kingston's J. Watson Bailey School auditorium, with tickets available at the door.

"Sebastians" comes from the talented pens of Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, and the local production is being directed by WGHQ radio personality, Bill Skilling, who also directed "Picnic," a recent Coach House success.

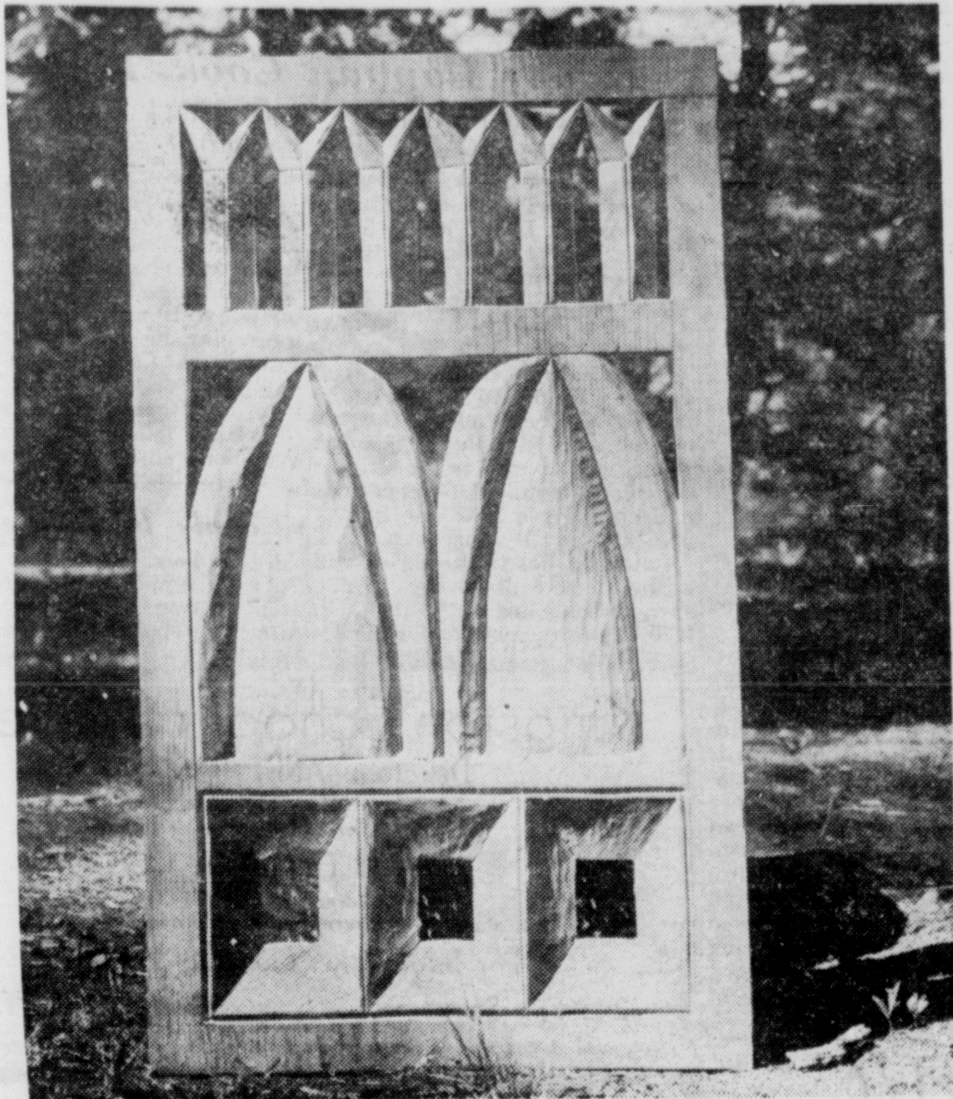

Coach House actor Pat Bottino has the lead male role of Rudi Sebastian, a part created on Broadway by Alfred Lunt when this spellbinding tale of mind readers first opened in New York. Bottino came to this area to join IBM from his native Bronx; is a Fordham University graduate; and appeared in college in such plays as Twelve Angry Men, Time Limit, The Last Mile, and Henry IV, Part I. As a member of the Pleasantville Players, he was seen in Tea and Sympathy and Dr. Faustus. Local audiences will remember him in past Coach House offerings, including Enter Laughing, The Desperate Hours, John Brown's Body and A Hatful of Rain.

Cast as Essie Sebastian, a role originally tailored for Lynn Fontaine, is Elizabeth Askue, and American Academy of Dramatic Arts graduate and an actress of radio and stage experience since childhood. Many acting awards have come her way, including a cup from Canada. A performer for British troops in World War II, she has appeared in previous Coach House productions; has also written and directed childrens' plays for CH. Frequently heard in reading programs is this area, she is the wife of a pediatrician, the mother of four children, and the author and director of numerous church programs locally.

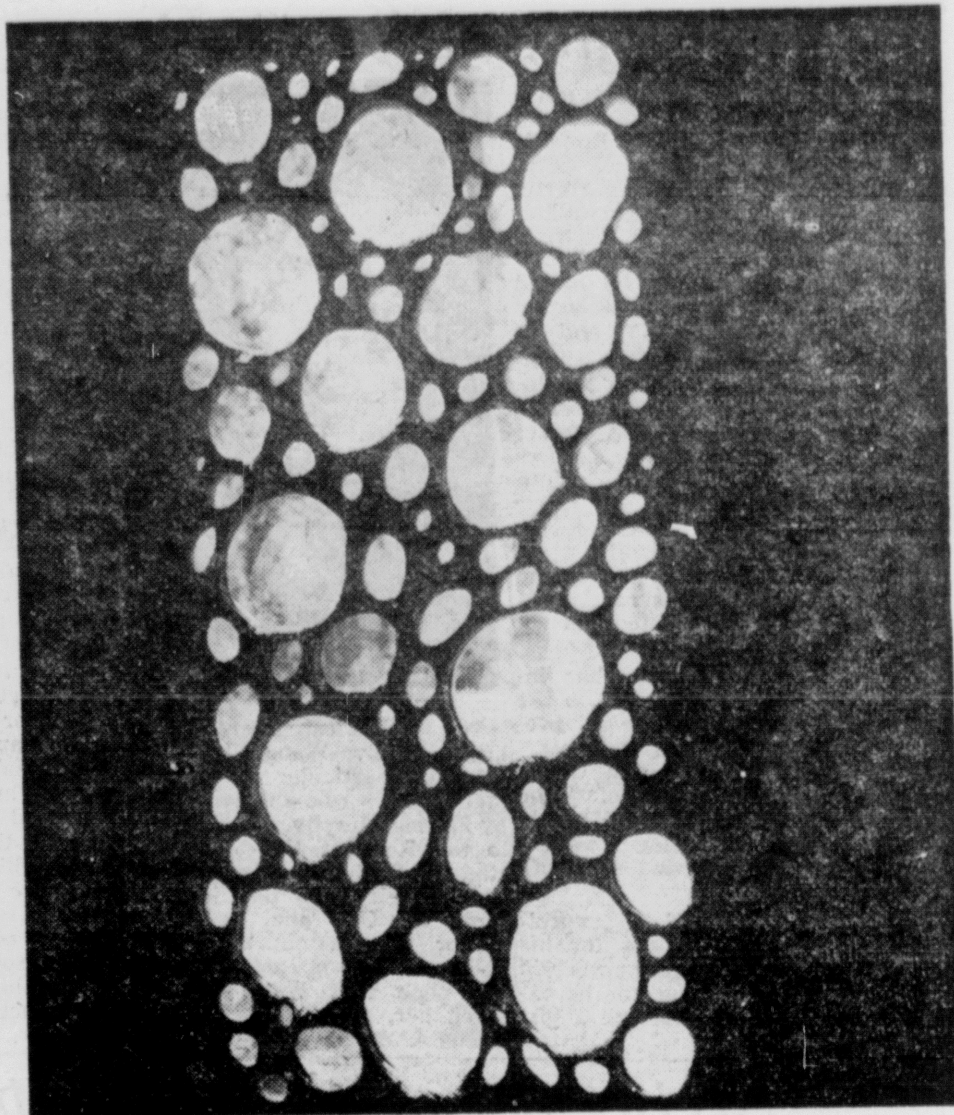

The Lowly Door As a Thing of Beauty

17—THE KINGSTON DAILY FREEMAN, MAY 10, 1969

A DOOR THAT PROTECTS and a door that invites is this massive but beautiful creation from Woodstock's L'Atelier III, which also produces hand-carved screens, architectural panels, mirrors and room dividers.

FROM THE INSIDE looking out, this door catches prisms of light through large and smaller circles of glass set in hand-carved wooden frame. Purchased from L'Atelier by 'The Elephant,' Woodstock's newest cafe, it's an open invitation to come on in.

Through These Portals

Those who know the multiplicity of artistic endeavors in which they have been involved, have been known to describe Woodstock artists John Berg and Bernard Paturel as "so talented, there ought to be a law against them."

Berg's sculpture works long ago established him as a formidable talent in his field, and Paturel's talented hands have created beauty from wood and, on the type-writer keys, some clever bits of writing.

Now the two have gone in partnership to establish L'Atelier III, a studio on Plochmann Lane in the art colony which specializes in handcarved doors, mirrors, screens architectural panels and room dividers.

Its All Manual

Shunning modern day machinery, the twosome arduously hand-carves each and every product — and the result is an admirably crafted work of art that makes of a sometimes utilitarian product a thing of unsurpassed beauty.

Any house could take on the aura of a mansion if a door from L'Atelier III became a part of its decor. The Berg-Paturel doors are more swinging than sliding or revolving. And they're more pine, walnut, mahogany and glass than oak, iron or silver. They're doors that look protective, inviting and beautiful. If they sometimes appear moderne and Neo-Hip, they often offer a nostalgic journey into the past, for they bear the artistic stamp of Neo-Gothic, Baroque, Victorian, Byzantine and rococo.

L'Atelier III's doors can be said to communicate. So impressing, elegant and intriguing are these portals that one can hardly resist their unspoken command to pull them and enter, push them and exit. They need no signs appended to warn us to Keep Out, direct us to Insert One Dime and Turn to Lock, or advise us that No Pets Are Allowed.

They are quite simply doors that attract the eye, draw the mind's response, and stand on their own as stunning works of art. They need no automation and no alarm system to be indicative of their art-based heritage of sculptured beauty—or of the life that would go on behind them.

Can Do a Wall

The Berg-Paturel team began thinking about hand-carving doors, mirrors and screens a year and a half ago; went into production last February. Now their studio boasts an imposing array of samples in pine that can be duplicated in mahogany and walnut, and in clear or rippled glass. L'Atelier is also equipped to produce a whole wall as room dividers—a wall that could prove to be a conversation piece for generations to come.

One of their most elegant doors has just gone into place at "The Elephant," recently opened cafe on Woodstock's Rock City Road. The door alone is beacon enough to attract patrons to the new cafe.

L'Atelier's fame is already spreading and there will be exhibits of the studio's doors, mirrors and room dividers soon in Dallas, Texas and New York City.

The price of a door is high; would have to be considering the superior materials used and the long hours of hand labor involved. Ask the man who owns one and he'll tell you his door cost between $600 and $2,000—but he'll also tell you he's a happy man. After all, no one else in the whole wide world owns a door exactly like his.

(By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

THIS DOOR STANDS on its own in more ways than one; is an intricate and delicate work of art. In a word, it "communicates." One of the more intriguing samples on display at L'Atelier III's studio on Plochmann Lane in Woodstock, it's headed for showings in Dallas and New York City. Chinatown's Oomphy Musical: Rondout's 'Flower Drum Song'

When Rodgers and Hammerstein's joyous "Flower Drum Song" is presented at Rondout Valley High School next week, audiences will be seeing Martin Kelly, a local and youthful talent, playing the role of the male lead, "Wang Ta." The San Francisco based musical is slated for presentation at RVHS on the evenings of May 15, 16 and 17.

Kelly is best known as a music teacher in Rondout's Middle School. But a long list of credits should appear after his name. He's a graduate of Crane Department of Music in Upstate Potsdam, a student of Kingston's Leonard Stine and of Dr. H. Hosmer at Crane, and a soloist with the Potsdam-Crane Chorus under the direction of Nadia Boulanger, noted French musician.

Kelly's stage career has included roles as "Woody" in the Gouverneur Civic Players' production of "Finian's Rainbow," "Joey" in the Potsdam Opera Workshop production of "The Most Happy Fella," and a role in the Rondout Valley Teachers Association production of "South Pacific."

Kelly, as Wang Ta, is expected to receive ovations for his most moving musical number in "Flower Drum Song" as he explains how he would ask a girl to marry him.

DIXON McGRATH

The girl most interested in knowing how Wang Ta would ask this particular question is Mei Li. This role will be played by Sharon Murphy, a new-comer to the Rondout Valley Central stage. As Mei Li, she plays a Chinese girl who has just entered the U.S. and, as a new visitor, she has much to learn about American customs. It is her hope that Wang Ta will teach her.

Sharon Murphy attended Connecticut's University of Bridgeport, is a secondary education major, and teaches social studies in the Middle School at Rondout. She and her husband reside in Cottekill and in this, her first musical stage experience, she has proved in rehearsals that she can convey the sweetness and warmth of a modest Chinese maiden in the role of Mei Li.

Directing "Flower Drum Song" is Dixon McGrath, sixth grade teacher at Rondout, who has directed seven of the eight faculty plays presented since 1962. McGrath has been on stage in every production, adding much to the entertainment of the audience. His direction of this newest production by RV teachers guarantees an evening of fun for everyone.

The Teachers Association now has tickets on sale at the high school for the May 15, 16 and 17 performances of "Flower Drum Song" and because the cause is worthy and the entertainment promised is great, members are hopeful that each of you out there will buy several tickets. All three dates are highly important to the RVTA since all monies collected will be used for the sole purpose of granting scholarships to selected students who elect to enter the field of teaching.

'String-a-Long' to 'Wrap Up' UCCC's Art Series for Year

The annual student art exhibit at Ulster County Community College is now on view through June 27. It is entitled "Emerging Talent."

In conjunction with the student exhibit this spring, there will be a "String-a-Long" program at 1:40 p.m. on Thursday, May 15, when students in the Three Dimensional Design class plan to "Wrap Up" the circular room in Gallery Hall.

As evidence of this year's emerging student art abilities, more space will be required for the exhibition than in past years.

"We are moving within larger concepts, and with the growth and the increasing amount of student work, the exhibition will be divided into two consecutive shows," said Miss Ruth Muroff, A. I. D., coordinator of visual arts.

Student work in Two and Three Dimensional Design will be viewed from now through May 23, and student work in Painting, Drawing and Graphics will be shown from May 26 through June 27.

The exhibitions will be in Gallery Hall in the John Burroughs Science Building and in Library Hall of the MacDonald Dewitt Library.

The works on exhibit represent the year's efforts of the art students and shows their progress at the college.

The students are involved in an art program designed to encourage engagement in human affairs and to stress phenomena and awareness of the expressive resources at the student's command.

The two-year sequence in the Visual Arts provided a broad-spectrum approach designed to counteract the drive toward narrow specialization and too-early exploitation of ability. The work revolves around basic understanding and perception and stresses a creative and experimental attitude of mind.

STAMPS

Honor Captain Cook, Lincoln

By SYD KRONISH
AP Newsfeatures

Capt. James Cook, English navigator and explorer, discovered Norfolk Island in the South Pacific in 1774. To honor his discoveries during his three voyages, that little island will issue a series of stamps over the next few years. On June 3 a stamp will commemorate Cook's first voyage, made to observe the transit of Venus across the sun on behalf of the Royal Society. Tahiti was chosen as the site for these astronomical observations and on June 3, 1769, the transit was successfully observed.

Later stamps in the series will honor Cook's discovery of the eastern seaboard of Australia in 1770, his discovery of Norfolk Island in 1774 and his death in Hawaii in 1779.

The mayor of Lincoln, England, sent to President Richard M. Nixon a cover cancelled there on Feb. 12 in observance of Abraham Lincoln's 160th birthday. It was cancelled with a circular die slogan which read "Abraham Lincoln-160th Birthday-1809-1969-12th Feb. '69-Lincoln, Gt. Britain." This was the first time such a cancellation ever honored an American.

Festival Draws 900 Buffs

Nearly 900 old time music lovers attended the two major concerts of the first Mid-Hudson Folk Festival held last Sunday at Orange County Community College, Middletown.

Four hundred youngsters and their parents lounged on a campus lawn for an afternoon children's concert and a capacity house of 450 attended the evening program in the college's Orange Hall auditorium.

"The festival was a great success," Dr. Walter F. Gard, chairman of the OCCC Lyceum Series event, said this week. "The performers had a good time, the audiences had a good time, and the music was good. Every performer promised to come back next year if we have another festival, and I think we'll try."

Open Sing, Too

Between the children's concert and the evening sing, performers conducted outdoor workshops in ballads, tale-telling and plucking instruments, and amateurs held a 90-minute open sing.

Songs sung at the event emphasized the folk traditions of the Hudson Valley. The folk artists included mission singer Dan Smith of White Plains;

Grant Rogers of Walton, the Delaware Valley traditionalist; Lawrence Older, fiddler-singer-yarn spinner from Middle Grove; Sara Cleveland of Brant Lake with her repertoire of 400 folk songs; and Sandy and Caroline Paton, folk music performers, collectors and recording specialists.

Scotsman Norman Kennedy, the weaver-singer at Colonial Williamsburgh, and Lew Killen, former coffin-maker and the founder of England's best-known folk club, added music of the British tradition from which the Mid-Hudson folk songs have sprung.

Major Musical Event for New Paltz

THE ROLES OF JESUS and THE EVANGELIST in Bach's "St. John's Passion" will be sung by guest artists Marvin Hayes, bass, and William McDonald, tenor, during major presentations May 16 and 18 at State University College, New Paltz. Both of these talented singers have received acclaim for their many appearances with major orchestras in the U. S. and abroad. Guest instrumentalists will appear for the May 16 and 18 concerts to be sung by the Concert Choirs of the college at New Paltz and Rondout Valley High School. Both presentations are slated at 8:30 both evenings in the McKenna Theatre on campus. There is no charge for admission, but reserved seats should be requested in advance; may be had by contacting the college.

'A Sixpence'

"A Sixpence" is the musical being presented tonight (May 10) at Poughkeepsie High School. The performance will benefit the "Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company" and will feature drama, dance and vocal students of the Estelle and Alfonso Studio.

"A Sixpence" is described as a lively, fast moving story with ample servings of music and comedy. It calls for a multitude of complicated scenic changes and these will be handled by a stage crew composed of associate members of the Mid-Hudson Regional Ballet Company. Other associates will assist with backstage direction and front-of-the-house management. The large cast includes performers from all parts of Dutchess County ranging in age from four to 32 years old.

Curtain time for tonight's show is 8 p. m.

Folk Festival For Children

Sandy and Caroline Paton, popular husband-and-wife folk-singing team, will headline an outdoor children's folk festival for all Mid-Hudson Valley residents this month. The Patons, folk favorites who have just appeared at the first Mid-Hudson Folk Festival in Middletown, will star in a festival planned for youngsters on Saturday, May 24 at 1 p. m. at the Randolph School, Route 9-D, south of Wappingers Falls.

The Dutchess County children's festival will also feature folk singers Vic Schwarz, Bill Spence, and Don McLean, who made many friends in this area as the Hudson River Troubadour last summer. Two high school rock bands, the Frost Mill Philharmonic and the Section 8, will also entertain at the May 24 festival. In addition, that perennial and ever popular attraction, a Punch and Judy show, will be on the program for the afternoon.

Rain date for the festival is Sunday, May 25 and ticket information may be had by calling 462-4090 or 452-1798.

Old No. 1247 Moved

A Home for a Caboose

Up in nearby Chatham, Kinderhook's controversial rail caboose has found a new and permanent home.

Earlier this month, old No. 1247, formerly in the freight service of the New York Central System, was moved from its once embattled site to the Chatham Fair Grounds, there to become the nucleus of a railroad museum. In Kinderhook where it was to have been a children's playhouse, it became the brunt of a big zoning battle, last summer.

The Columbia County Agricultural Society bought the caboose for $1,000 and spent another $800 to have it moved to the Fair Grounds and set up on a length of track and ties. The new Fair attraction is situated not far from the new Hudson Avenue gate to the grounds and will be the first step in an effort to develop the south end of the 50-acre Fair Grounds tract.

Lends Its Support

Lending enthusiastic support to the creation of an impressive collection of railroad memorabilia is the Harlem Valley Railroad Club, Inc.

Members of the club have served in an advisory capacity to the Fair Society and are pursuing leads toward the acquisition of more old railroad cars, equipment, furnishings and railroad uniforms. It is their hope that eventually the exhibit will include a steam locomotive. It is probable that this group of railroad buffs will have an attractive display ready for the upcoming Fair next Labor Day weekend, using the caboose as the focal point.

The old Rutland Railroad freight house at Chatham may soon join the caboose. The small building that served the Rutland's Chatham terminus for many years belongs to the local Railroad Club whose members have generously agreed to add it to the historic Fair Grounds collection. Both the Fair Society and the HVRRC feel the Columbia County Fair is an appropriate place for a permanent exhibit and museum that will perpetuate the rich railroading history of Chatham.

Television

Always thankful for the small things in life, we welcome the news that the flood of beauty pageants hitting the TV screen has reached the saturation point. The cutback has already begun — and you'll get no complaints from us.

We liked Dick Cavett's quip about James Franciscus. Seems Cavett and Franciscus were fellow students at Yale. Jim was not a good speller and got tutoring from Dick, who says that when Franciscus became Mr. Novak, "I immediately assumed that whenever he wrote on a blackboard, they had to use a stunt man."

If you liked that documentary flying show, Kitty Hawk to Paris this week, you'll welcome the news that those responsible plan a sequel, covering aviation from Lindbergh to World War II, as well as a show on the end of the railways, and one of the first conquest of the Matterhorn.

The Great Orson

Another series we'll personally be looking forward to — the 90 minute specials entitled "Around the World" and set for CBS. Orson Welles will star and his first visits will include stops in London, Moscow and Mongolia.

If you're a cops and robbers fan, relax. Both of Jack Webb's policemen-oriented series will be back next season. Those would be Adam-12 and Dragnet, of course.

RANDOM THOUGHTS ON RECENT VIEWING:

We beg to differ with various critics who found fault with The Grammy Awards Show. We considered it the best of the many awards telecasts for the most basic of reasons. All but one award had already been presented and the purpose of the show was to present the reasons the individual stars had won. It was enough that top talents in the business were seen performing the recording that won him (or her) a Grammy. And, besides, we were rooting for Simon and Garfunkel and "Mrs. Robinson" to win the Record of the Year — and they did.

First Tuesday, the NBC "magazine-format" news series, was once again so chock-full of goodies (from grand opera and Spanish-American poverty to heart surgery and the DAR) that it was the Good News Program of the week.

Who, What, Where, When. Why managed to both educate and entertain with its report and evaluation on the first hundred days of the Nixon administration. Cogent comments abounded from Eric Sevareid, Roger Mudd, Dan Rather and Daniel Schorr on Vietnam, taxation, and student unrest.

Our Two Faces

Author Loring Mandel established one facet of life very effectively in his original drama, "Shadow Game," on CBS Playhouse. That was that we all possess two faces, the physical one that goes with us wherever we go, and on which we are too often judged, and the real face that lurks beneath the skin of the physical, the one that is our true self, which we so effectively hide, as did Dorian Grey. There was fine realism here, and very effective performances by Daniel Massey (Raymond's son), William Shatner of Star Trek, and William Windom.

Beautifully done and excellent fare was "Kitty Hawk to Paris," all about those hardy and often foolhardy men who first experimented with flight in their bicycle-wheeled, cardboard contraptions. Somehow their courage came through as greater than that of astronauts. Truly awe-inspiring and chilling, and the fact that Rhinebeck pilot Cole Palen played a major part in discussions made it even more interesting.

TEMPO'S PICK OF THE PROGRAMS FOR THE WEEK AHEAD INCLUDE:

Tonight, Sat., May 10

ROD MCKUEN: THE LONER (NBC, 8:30 p.m.). Promises a unique TV experience as McKuen, the much publicized poet-singer-composer, offers his first TV special in a one-man show. Among the works the throaty-voiced McKuen will perform: If You Go Away, Listen to the Warm, Stanyan Street and Lonesome Cities.

Sunday, May 11

MIRROR OF AMERICA (NBC, 10 p.m.). A fine piece of his torical viewing using the still-pictures-in-motion technique done so well in that recent, excellent special, Meet George Washington. The landmarks of Washington, D. C. (the Capitol, the White House, Arlington National Cemetery, the Lincoln Memorial) serve as devices for flashbacks, narrated by Burgess Meredith.

Monday, May 12

ANDERSON & CO. (NBC, 8 p.m.). Fred Gwynne ("The Munsters") heads the cast of this pilot film, a gentle comedy set in the early 1900s.

MOVIE (NBC, 8:30 p.m.). "Father Goose" is a 1964 comedy in which Cary Grant gives a colorful performance as a hard-drinking drifter who's working as a plane spotter during World War II on a deserted South Sea isle, only to have his solitude interrupted by a marooned French schoolteacher (Leslie Caron) and her seven female charges. (RERUN)

NET JOURNAL (Channels 13 & 17, 9 p.m.). Along a donkey trail in the mountains of Mexico, cameras follow a deported wetback in the documentary "Human Cargo." He's travelled some 600 miles, only to be caught by a border patrol and returned to his homeland for illegally entering the U.S. A worthwhile documentary on the wetback phenomenon and the dreams of poor Mexicans.

Tuesday, May 13

MOVIE (NBC, 9 p.m.). "The Pink Panther" has Peter Sellers as French detective Jacques Clouseau stumbling onto the crime-busting scene. The more Sellers bungles, the funnier this comedy becomes. (RERUN)

Wednesday, May 14

MOVIE (ABC, 9 p.m.). "The Great Sioux Massacre" is a fast-moving recreation of the events leading up to Custer's famous battle at the Little Bighorn in 1876. Vintage 1965, it stars Joseph Cotten, Darren McGavin and Iron Eyes Cody.

Thursday, May 15

LEE MARVIN — PROFILE (Channel 9, 8 p.m.). Lee

LAUGH-IN's Rowan and Martin bet their bippies two years ago on a new kind of TV show and now they're sitting atop the ratings heap. Currently STARS in the time-honored mold, they're rolling in good living as platinum-coated, neon-lighted, diamond-crusted idols. Their show's so far ahead of the second-rated program that it's no contest, and they're making their first movie, "The Maltese Bippy." Those in the know say they'll be as big in movies as comedy teams Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello, Hope and Crosby, and Martin and Lewis. Fans also saw them on the Grammy Awards show on NBC this week; can look forward to viewing them at the Emy Awards broadcast since their own Laugh-In has been tapped for an unprecedented 11 Emmy nominations.

Marvin, the Woodstock art colony's most famous son and one of Hollywood's favorite tough guys, is profiled as an actor and friend by Robert Ryan, Angie Dickinson, Jane Fonda and others.

Friday, May 16

COMRADE SOLDIER (ABC, 7:30 p.m.). An uncensored film shot in the Soviet in 1968 by an ABC camera crew that gives a portrait of a Russian soldier, from induction through several weeks of training.

NET PLAYHOUSE (Channels 13 & 17, 8:30 p.m.). What would

Dustin Hoffman do with a time machine? Tune in and find out on "The Star Wagon," Maxwell Anderson's Comedy-fantasy which enables Hoffman and Orson Bean to juggle time zones. (COMPILED BY T. GEERTSEMA)

Woodstock Composer's Serenade Highlighted With Mozart Fugue

Organist John Baldwin, former head of the Hamilton College music department, will be the featured soloist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Chamber Players at a concert to be held Sunday evening, May 11, at the Webb Horton Memorial Presbyterian Church in Middletown. Admission is free to the 8 p.m. program which is sponsored by the Lyceum Series of Orange County Community College. It will mark a return appearance by Baldwin who played a highly successful concert there last April. The program will include "Sinfonia No. 2" by C. P. E. Bach, "Adagio and Fugue for String Orchestra K-546" by Mozart, "Concertino for Organ and Strings" by Roger Hannay, "Serenade for String Orchestra" by Alexander Semmler, Woodstock composer, and "Concerto in B-Flat Major for Organ and Strings" by Handel. Baldwin taught music at Hamilton for nearly 20 years until 1964 when he became professor of music at Fairleigh-Dickinson University's Madison, N. J., campus. Peanuts?

Some people think that's what you wind up with when you save a few dollars a week. Well, how about $2,953 worth of peanuts—in five years, say? Just ten dollars a week for only five years, and you'll have almost three thousand dollars. That's a pile of peanuts.

The Prime of Miss Jean Brodie

This is a rare, marvelous and unusual film in which Maggie Smith emerges as one of the finest actresses of our time. Adapted from the best-selling novel by Muriel Spark, and based on the play by Jay Presson Allen which ran on Broadway with great success, it's now showing at the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties through May 13.

The story centers on Miss Jean Brodie, an unconventional teacher in a conservative school for girls in Edinburgh in 1932. Passionately committed to her own individualism and to her romantic and distorted view of life, she is a type rarely seen on the screen. No longer young, she considers herself at the peak of her power to develop in her rapt young students a love of art and truth, and a burning sense of destiny.

Miss Brodie's girls are special; the "creme de la creme," she calls them, and her devotion is exceeded only by the wild unorthodoxies of her teaching, and her driving egotistic needs. Her headstrong, muddled attitudes lead her into two abortive love affairs, an outspoken admiration for her current heroes, Mussolini and Franco, and above all, to no real understanding of the young girls in her charge who adore her and whom she so ardently and dangerously misleads.

Her encouragement of a love affair between one of her students and one of her own former lovers leads to tragedy. But even then she refuses to see the truth resulting from her foolish enthusiasms, preferring her heroic visions to reality. When the irresponsibility of her teachings become evident to one girl, the spell is broken.

Maggie Smith's glowing portrayal of flamboyant charm, bravado and distortion as Miss Jean Brodie gets superb support from a gifted cast.

Joanna

This startlingly bold British drama, now playing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema, describes a world where personal license is completely accepted. Having done so, it then urges that life has a meaning beyond self-gratification.

Joanna (Genevieve Waite), an immature 18-year-old from the provinces, arrives in London to study art. Attractive and irresponsible, she is soon one of a mod crowd, and with Beryl (Glenna Forster-Jones), an exotic Negro model as her guide, she makes her way from lover to lover, insistent on total freedom.

But throughout her playing among the insecure sophisticates and wealthy drifters who surround her, runs the suggestion that life holds something more. She learns it finally when she falls deeply in love with Beryl's brother (Calvin Lockhart) and decides to bear his child, while he serves a lengthy prison term.

A young and able British cast gives a telling performance, but there is emphasis on nudity and frank love scenes. While they have a place in the story, audiences should be forewarned that they are indeed there.

Mention should also be made of the fact that reality and illusion are combined in photography that is handled with originality and beauty. And through revealing flashes of Joanna's thoughts, hostilities, dreams and memories, the film offers an unusual reflection of a contemporary scene.

Berserk

A series of gruesome murders take place against a background of entertaining circus acts in this film, back for a re-run on the double bill currently at Kingston's Community Theater. Story has Joan Crawford, a strong-willed widow, becoming the sole owner and manager of a British circus when her partner is murdered.

Her rigid management does not help receipts, but a series of macabre and unexplained incidents — a high wire artist hanged by his own rope, a co-worker killed with an iron spike through his head, a knife in the back of another performer — cause business to flourish. Amidst all the trouble, Miss Crawford's daughter, expelled from boarding school, arrives unexpectedly and joins the travelling show. As the four deeds increase, Scotland Yard appears on the scene and gets to the bottom of the matter. The mystery is solved against a backdrop of highly professional circus acts.

Hannibal Brooks

Behind German lines in World War II, British P.O.W. Brooks (Oliver Reed), is put in charge of Lucy, the elephant in the Munich Zoo. That's the basic plot line of this film, now playing at Kingston's Mayfair Theater.

Ordered to take Lucy to Innsbruck after an air raid, Brooks sets out on the long trek, accompanied by two guards and a pretty Polish prisoner as cook. A fatal accident makes escape essential and the small group heads for the neutral Swiss border. As Brooks will not abandon his now beloved Lucy, he must fall behind the others in crossing the Alps, and his journey with his elephant is both humorous and tense.

Paralleling this flight are the activities of a kooky G.I. escapee (Michael J. Pollard) who, with his band of guerrillas, is happily harassing German

THE QUESTION of whether Lee Marvin and his band of American Army misfits can capture and destroy a chalet occupied by top German brass is the dramatic basis for the World War II story photographed in color, "The Dirty Dozen." The film is now showing on the double bill at Kingston's Sunset Drive-In, along with "Grand Prix," a movie about sports car racing, starring James Garner. Both are oldies, but exciting ones.

MAGIE SMITH plays an unconventional Scottish school-mistress in "THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE," the movie currently featured at the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties. Miss Smith gives a memorable performance as a teacher who sways her class of impressionable girls with her own distorted, romantic views of reality.

THE BROOMMAKER AT WORK IN HIS SHOP

Man-made and natural attractions abound along New York's Hudson River Valley and many of these attractions are easily accessible in a leisurely one day excursion out of our area. One of the most interesting is on Route 17 at Monroe, N. Y.—the Museum Village of Smith's Clove. Here one can get acquainted with a generation that belonged to a rural America.

Smith's Clove is a Nineteenth Century crossroads village brought back to life, one-room schoolhouse, smithy, wagonmaker, pottery, candlemaker, tin-smith, weaver, bootmaker, broommaker, cooper, cider mill and apothecary—everything that the community needed and created for itself. The Museum attempts to show development of a village from the Age of Homespun to the Age of Craftsmen and eventually to the American Age of Industry. Some 37 buildings are arranged as environment for demonstration and display of tools, utensils and machines where craftsmen demonstrate the crafts of the last century.

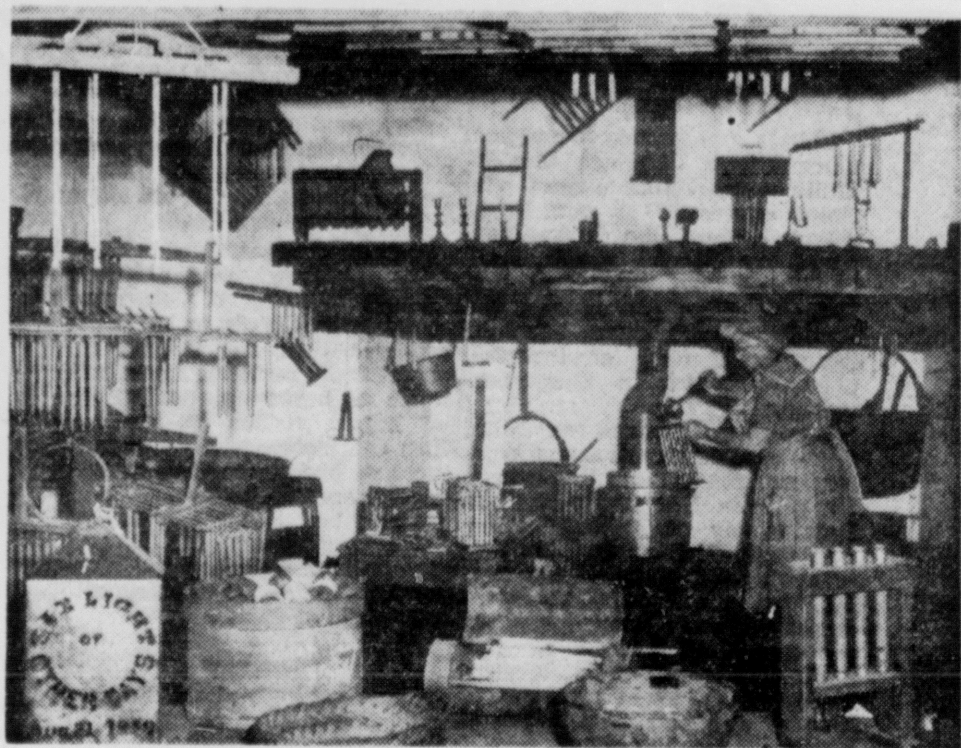

Some of the buildings ring the green—like the Log Cabin, are originals transported bodily from their original locations. Others are faithful reproductions. At one end of the green is a small cannon where youngsters love to perch and beyond it is the Fire House filled with hand pumpers, steam pumpers, brass hoe, leather hose, hose carts and leather buckets.

The Ox Stock

Beyond the double doors of the Byron Kellum's Blacksmith Shop, Walter Byers, the blacksmith, shapes the hot iron on his anvil. Behind him is the ox stock with belly straps to hold the animal up while being shod. An ox you learn, can't remain standing with only three feet on the ground.

The Charles Vernon Apothecary Shop, was uprooted and moved a few years ago from its location in Florida, N. Y. Established in 1812 the patent medicines, glassware and soda fountain are just as they were a century ago.

Across the green is the J. C. Merritt General Store. You wonder at this strange profusion of merchandise; a hard cone of sugar, undisturbed for a century; blocks of soap, lamp chimneys, buggy whips, thread cases and bolts of cloth on the shelf. There is also a pot-bellied stove and a cracker barrel. In addition to the living museum there are many exhibits—the livery stable with fancy carriages and harness, the farm shed with implements of other days; a cider mill from Vermont with its 18 inch square timbers on a three ton granite base; and the Friends Meeting House used once a year by a local Quaker meeting.

There are at least 100,000 items in the collection of the Museum including toys, fire engines, guns, glassware, tools, musical instruments, woodenware, trade signs, costumes, cigar store Indians and a complete Mastodon excavated a short distance from the Museum.

Special Events

Special events scheduled for the season include two antique automobile shows, one on May 18 and again on Sept. 28 and an antique flea market is scheduled for Aug. 22. Other 1969 exhibitions scheduled—19th Century Bath Tubs; 19th Century Trade Symbols; "American Prints from the Civil War to World War I."

Now open for its 20th season, the hours at Museum Village of Smith's Clove are from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily and from 10 a. m. to 6 p. m. weekends. The Museum is located on Route 17 four miles west of Exit 16 on the New York Thruway.

He'll Do It All From Memory

A dynamic young artist who performed before a capacity audience at famed Philharmonic Hall at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts in New York City, will appear at Kingston's Old Dutch Church, Tuesday, May 13, at 8 p. m.

Gordon Bush, former Director of Music at Old Dutch will be returning to present a special organ concert in honor of the 310th anniversary of the church.

Bush is well known as a church organist and oratorio accompanist, having performed virtually every well known oratorio. At the present time, he is serving as organist of the nation's fourth largest Presbyterian Church, located at Westfield, N.J.

He has become celebrated as a recitalist, having appeared in concerts across the eastern seaboard, including some 50 concerts before various chapters of the American Guild of Organists and appearances throughout New York, New Jersey and Connecticut.

A former student at Westminster Choir College and a graduate of the Guilman Organ School in New York City, Bush was the winner in the Guilman Organ Competition. This achievement brought him a performance at Lincoln Center, where he was received with praise for his performance by both audience and critics alike.

One music critic wrote of the Bush performance, "From beginning to end, Mr. Bush showed a mastery of the instrument. Technical perfection predominated throughout the difficult program the young man chose for himself."

Kingston and area residents will be afforded the opportunity to see and hear this brilliant and versatile young organist perform a most challenging concert. The program announced includes:

Toccata Op. 59 . . . Max Reger
Wer Nur Den Lieben Gott Lässt
Walten . . . J. S. Bach
Prelude Fugue and Chaconne . . . Buxtehude
Prelude and Fugue in A
Minor . . . J. S. Bach
Suite Op. 70 . . . Paul Creston
"Prelude"
Scherzo-Cats . . . Jean Langlais
Prayer . . . Jean Langlais
Sonata II . . . Hindemith
Prelude and Fugue Franz Liszt
Bush will perform the program in its entirety from memory.

A reception following the program will provide the audience an opportunity of meeting artist Bush.

Lot of Traveling

Versatile star Carol Lawrence has to do a lot of traveling to tape two "Kraft Music Hall" programs in which she will star for NBC-TV this summer. She'll do one in London June 9 to 13 and one in Hawaii June 17 to 20.

Fleming Special

Olympic ice skating champion Peggy Fleming will star in her second special for NBC-TV during the Christmas holiday season next winter. Her first special was aired last November.

Going Gourmet

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

If the Medicis were still with us today, one could expect to find them dining with frequent regularity at The Sawyerkill Restaurant in Saugerties. There's a renaissance flavor to this elegant eatery in spite of the fact that it takes its name from the early Dutch.

Early Dutch, too, is the admonishment at the top of its menu: "Drink what pure is; Speak what true is; Eat what is well cooked."

To how pure is a Sawyerkill martini, we can attest. So unusually hefty is the restaurant's version of this classic cocktail that two of them would make even a local mini-Medici look important. And that we speak true when we say the fare offered is not only "well" but sublimely "cooked" is no exaggeration. In brief, the food is very good, the decor attractive, the service like a visit to a gentler century.

Eat a Still-Life

Each of the hors d'oeuvres offerings is a still-life in itself, whether one chooses Escargot Provencale, the Jumbo Shrimp Cocktail, Baked Stuffed Clams, Oysters Casino or Cherrystone Clam Cocktail. The potages are magnificent compositions and our favorite is French Onion Au Gratin.

If you're feeling rich as a Medici, you'll want to order a Flaming Filet de Boeuf ($7.50), but so "heavenly" it's well worth the price. The Chateaubriand a la Gourmet for two is a savory enticement at $13.50. With both of these entrees, it would be folly not to insist on the Caesar Salad for two.

Mini-Medicis on a budget can also afford to dine at the Sawyerkill. Chicken Saute Bombay is a technicolor masterpiece at only $3.75. Veal Cordon Bleu is a piquant dish priced at $4.95. Eminence of Beef a la Stroganoff is utter perfection at $4. The Sawyer Sirlion Steak is enormous and, therefore, fairly priced at $6.25. Those with petite appetites should be happy to settle for the Lady Sawyer Filet Mignon which will add only $4.95 to your bill.

If your visit to this gourmet island takes place on a Saturday or Sunday, you can't afford to ignore the Roast Prime Ribs of Black Angus Beef au Jus. Extra thick cuts are served on those days at a minimal increase in price.

Fishy Picasso

The Broiled Jersey Pork Chops and Roast Young Vermont Turkey (with Sawyer dressing) are among the lower priced menu items, but our taste runs more to the Roast Duckling au Porto, the Giant Shrimp Tempura, the Cote de Veau en Casserole, and the Broiled Australian Lobster Tail. Our better half prefers Filet of Sole Picasso (too bad the Medici never had a chance to patronize him) and Frogs Legs sen Chao Tien Chi.

Sawyerkill desserts are rich and lavish but, when ordered with expresso coffee for two, can make you forget your diet. Try the Peach Flambe or the Cherries Jubilee if you're celebrating — or settle for cheesecake or a parfait if you just got your tax bill.

Eddie's Specials

Eddie Albert will star in four "I Look for America" television specials. The programs will be based on the Simon and Garfunkel record album of the same name.

Potpourri

By JOAN L. WOINOSKI

It's that time of year again when local Saratoga raceway buffs are getting the urge to put on the feedbag and start providing the "fodder" for the "mudders." And there's a going-group of area swingers saving for the "banquet;" we know 'cause we've met them at the track. . . Mary Minasian, Tess Moss, Frankie Bruno, Jack Shorr, Leo Kay, Charlie Hoppey, the Cornwells, Gardiners, DeGraffs. But not once have we spotted them at Trade Winds, one of Saratoga Springs very "most" restaurants. It's been bugging us that, perhaps, they're in the dark 'bout it; if so, it's time to see the light.

During the flats, fans addicted to seeing Stiff Upper Lip and Stool Pigeon run the last race may be too late for first seating at the establishment where doors open 5 p.m. sharp. (We know sports who've even missed Funny Fellow, English Muffin, and Bold Ambition, to make it.) But for harness racing enthusiasts, there's time to dine and still make the track before daily-double windows close.

The Pampas Room is strictly pizzazz—all purples, royal blues, deep maroons, stone, varnished woods—with circular center section beneath bunches of multi-colored grabs. . . artificial, of course; they wouldn't dare otherwise. . . hanging from wooden wheel-shaped ceiling.

The waiting room is the last straw. Though a pleasure to sit for a bit, when one is the victim of starvation spasms, he doesn't always dig decor. (Most fans notice it on the way out.)

Kingstonians Helen and Joe Mahar, and Irene and Ed Callahan, as well as Art and Clara Buddenhagen—former residents who are now making their pad at Hyde Park—have gone, seen and been conquered.

It's all in the way you look at it. . . whether first love is feeding a four-legged filly who, in track-gab, is probably "still running," or indulging the thoroughbred's paying roofer—little ole YOU—with the finest in Spanish cuisine. If it's the latter. . . "Ole."

Katsbaan owners, Marta and Alvi Peiponen, are back at the food grind and rarin' to go since their Finland Vacation. Saw Judge Sterley and wife there for Sunday dinner recently. Noted so many MDs frequenting the place—Doc Wolff, Dr. Silk, Dr. MacKinnon, Dr. Dean—beginning to think they're serving "health" food. For the cultural minded: there's an impressive work of art, painted by German Herr while prisoner in French prison camp, that's worth perusing; ask Alvi "what's it all about."

If you've noticed young men "helloing" you whom you don't think you know, you might be making a booboo. Understand they're starting to shed the long hair and beard bit; New Paltz barbers are working like crazy. One just doesn't recognize his relatives without the fur. But is it time for a change? Yeah, yeah, yeah! . . . As for the Lions Expo: Don MacIsaac was giving running commentary on Leonardo da Vinci's inventions at IBM exhibit and who's better qualified? . . . Exceptionally fine painting by Bonnie Ann Bibbo at John A. Coleman booth. . . "Does he or doesn't he?" With those toupes from J and J Wig Hut's display, who's to know?

. . . To all Ulster County mothers, in general; Kingston mothers, in particular; and yours truly's mom, especially: HAVE A HAPPY!

supply lines, hoping to wipe out the entire enemy army. Pollard, who scored in "Bonnie and Clyde," is constantly urging the peace-loving Reed (who's a hit in "Oliver") to join him, whenever their paths cross. Violence and death have a necessary part in what is basically a delightful whimsical tale about an endearing elephant and her off-beat keeper. This is a warm and beguiling film in spite of its brutal war background.

GENEVIEVE WAITE is the pretty newcomer cast in the title role of "Joanna," the film now showing at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema. MOVIES

The Mad Room

Ghoulis film fare, this one, now featured on the double bill at the Community here. We'd have to describe "Room" as a "new-generation" horror story in which the seemingly normal and innocent type turns out to be the baddie responsible for all the terror. There's a lot of psychopathia, psychology, interracial sex and similar jazz spelled out in fine detail.

Basically, the story involves the release of two teenagers into their elder sister's custody after 12 years in a mental institution because, at the respective ages of four and six, they had presumably butchered their sleeping parents and decorated the room in which the deed occurred with flowers etched in blood. Older sis was then 14 when she came upon the crime, but she's now all grown up and ready to marry her wealthy employer's stepson. Into her new home she hopes to bring her siblings.

Somewhere along the way the employer gets hacked to bits and blood drawings appear again as on that fateful day in the past.

Shelley Winters is the employer and she's great — playing her role to the hilt. Nat "King" Cole's daughter, Carol, makes her screen debut in the part of a luscious flirt — and she's lovely indeed. But when Shelley gets slashed out of the script, Stella Stevens, Barbara Sammeth and others in the cast can't seem to manage to carry all the hacking, hatcheting and neuroses to a fitting climax.
